Woodside Tax Rate Faces Big Boost

City May 'Save' Nealon Park Rec Building Drive

City councilmen this week indicated they might come to the rescue of the embattled Nealon Park Recreation Building Fund, which is now $8,500 short of its goal.

Though they made no commitment, after City Manager John R. Johnson conceded that the city recreation department would use the $30,000, 2400-square-foot structure most of the time, the council indicated the monies needed might be forthcoming out of sales tax funds, on a loan basis.

Before turning to slides of the completed projects which had been done in the last two year, the city manager brought up the problem facing the Menlo-Atherton nursery school.

The school officials have been raising funds for the new biulding which they plan to erect at Nealon park. The city council has already allocated $7,000 to the building program on a cooperative basis which will enable them to use the building during afternoons, evenings and over weekends for recreation purposes, and have an office for the park's recreation director.

Now, after a year of fund raising, the nursery school people have come up $8500 shy of the proposed building cost of $30,000 quoted by the architect.

According to Johnson, the school officials would be willing to pay back, on a rent type basis, a sum of $150 monthly until the capital investment sum was paid off, if the city will put out the remaining $8500. "In effect," said Johnson, "they are asking us to get into the project in a greater degree."

Ira Bonde felt that the city was already in a position to receive the recreational benefits from the building, and that granting money was one thing, but loaning would probably get rather involved.

Councilman Michael Belangie countered with the suggestion that if the Lucy Stern foundation was willing to contribute $5000 to the project, the city would be in good company if it helped the school program. "That is, if they continue the fund raising project. On the proposed basis they could pay us $150 for the next 10 years, but they seem to have picked up quite a bit of money over the last year period," said Belangie.

Councilman Guy Plaisted added his comment that the group was very active and the recreation department would be getting 75 per cent of the usable time in the new building. "If we are going to profit, why not help them out?" he asked.

City Hall Really Buzzin'

The city of Menlo Park now has a bee-hive.

It's not one of the traditional white boxes, set up by apiarists for the benefit of passing swarms of honey-gatherers, but it works just as well.

It's been found, says City Administrative Assistant Michael Bedwell, in the west end of the city council chambers building.

The queen bee, he said, apparently showed the sagacity necessary to locate a small ventilating pipe protruding from the side of the building, and led her swarm into it.

The swarm is now ensconced, said Bedwell. between the walls of the building.

They can't get inside, he said, and everybody is fairly happy about this.

The swarm was found in its present location about two weeks ago.

'School 11' Plans Get State Okay

Janssen, Daseking and Keller, Menlo Park architects, this week received a conditional okay from the state to go ahead with plans for "School 11" in the Ravenswood School District. The new school is to be constructed at Pulgas avenue and O'Connor street.

Approval by the State Department of Finance is necessary because the school is on a plan to reecive aid originally passed by the state.

Bids, the lowest of which was that sent in by the Barnhart Construction Company of Santa Clara, have been in hand for the past several weeks. The low bid was for $495,803.

Approval by the state means that construction of the school can begin possibly within the next 10 days. "However," said Superintendent Stanley Schnepple, "there is one small point which must be adjusted before the state will give its final okay."

The new structure will have 16 classrooms, shop and home economics facilities. There will also be a library. The school will accommodate between 480 and 500 seventh and eighth grade students when it opens in the fall of 1961.

This will be the second seventh through eighth grade school located in the Ravenswood district. "School 11" will be adjacent to Brentwood School, which includes kindergarten through the sixth grades. Together, the schools will occupy an area of roughly 20 acres. They will be divided by a strip of playground area used by both schools, although both will have their own recreation areas.

"School 11" does not have a multi-purpose building, but there is a possibility that something may be worked out between the principals of the two schools.

Having the new school "move in" on it, however, is not expected to have any compromising effects for Brentwood, according to Schnepple. "In fact, both schools will probably acquire better facilities through the association, as have Willow School and Menlo Oaks, another two-school combination situated on complementary properties.

The boundaries for the new school have not been set, but they are being worked on. According to Schnepple, "They will probably be fluid for the first couple of years."

$100 DAMAGE IN FIRE

The Dauphine Paine home was damaged to an extent estimated at $100 Saturday, when a box of rubbish left next to a building took fire, causing damage to the structure.

Children Set Brush Fires In Woodside

Children playing with matches caused two brush and tree fires which kept Woodside Fire District firemen hopping last Monday afternoon during a 10-minute period.

Fire Chef John Volpiano said that children were undoubtedly involved in a tree and leaf fire resulting from a smouldering bicycle innertube in the undeveloped area of Ladera subdivision. After answering this call at 3:58 p.m., the department rushed within minutes to another child-inspired brush fire in Trinity lane, Woodside Highlands.

Other alarms this week included: Monday, 3:02 p.m., grass and trees, Menlo Park Country Clu, cause undetermined; Tuesday, 3:44 p.m., grass and brush, No. 2 Arastradero road, burning out of hand; Tuesday, 7:15 p.m., grass and brush, entrance to 2755 Woodside road, cause undetermined.

Chicken Pox Cases Found

An outbreak of chicken pox here was indicated by the San Mateo County Health and Welfare Department's regular monthly morbidity report, which said seven cases of the disease were reported from Menlo Park during July.

Department heads, however, have pointed out that the reports of minor childhood diseases are usually scattered and incomplete, unless the outbreak is of substantial proportions.

Besides being the scene of the finding of the chicken pox cases during July, Menlo Park reported five cases of gonorrhea, one case of meningitis, three cases of mumps and four cases of syphilis during the month, the report said.

Local Sports:

PICTURE

An end-of-season air pervades the sports scene in the Menlo Park area this week, with many organized summer sports reaching the ends of their schedules and others preparing to.

Still operating in high gear, however, the Menlo Park Recs semipro baseball nine is going into a tough five-game weekend slate starting tonight against he San Carlos Merchants. Saturday they play an unusual doubleheader at the Soledad State Correctional Facility — no specators will be allowed in. Sunday it's a big Bayshore League doubleheader with the league-leading Burlingame Red Sox.

Menlo Park Recreation Department's tennis classes have played their semi-annual interclass tournament and a mixed group of them whipped a Redwood City rec squad this week.

The story on these and other sports happenings as well as a story on the local floral winners at the recent San Mateo County Fair and Floral Fiesta will be found in the second section

'Smoke Screen' Charged In Annex Move

Proponents of Portola Valley's incorporation this week labeled as "a smoke screen and delaying process" an opposition move to question them under oath about their signed petitions.

Pro-incorporation spokesman Robert V. Brown said the whole business is designed "to prejudice our case" before the County Board of Supervisors at a public hearing set for Sept. 15 on protests to incorporation.

'Groundless" was Brown's flat reply to John Francis Neylan's charge that some pro-incorporation signatures were obtained under "misrepresentations."

Neylan, retired attorney and large property owner, filed notice last week that he wishes to take statements from the three leaders of the citizens committee for incorporation before filing suit against the incorporation. He reportedly represents 500 property owners opposing the incorporation.

The three committee leaders are Brown, A. B. Chandler and Adaline B. Jessup.

Neylan said that the pro-incorporation signers were not told that their signatures would be used to show that at least 25 per cent of property owners actually favored incorporation.

Two Area Men Maritime Academy Grads

Two area men are to be graduated Sunday from the California Maritime Academy in Vallejo, and will receive licenses as officers in the merchant marine.

The two are Sidney King Graham, son of Captain and Mrs. K. M. Graham of 3820 San Hill road in Woodside and Gordon Kenneth Lancaster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lancaster of 214 O'Connor street in Menlo Park.

Graham will be presented with his third mate's papers and Lancaster, the papers of a third assistant engineer.

Lancaster is a graduate of Menlo-Atherton High school, Graham is a graduate of Menlo school.

Burglars Hit Store Here

Burglars Tuesday night broke through the back door of the Vogue dress shop at 706 Santa Cruz avenue, and took $54, police said yesterday.

The illegal entry was discovered by officer Fred Burney, on regular patrol, at 2:42 a.m. yesterday.

Meets Many Friends:

Fawns Like Menlo, Too

Tinker the three-month old fawn is back in the woods again, after a three-month sojourn in civilization.

Of course, she's not back in the wilds along with other deer. She's at a ranch off Skyline boulevard, in a large, friendly pen, after having learned to get along with unwoods-like inhabitants as the cat, dogs and three children of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Nahmens of 102 Reservoir road in Atherton.

According to Mr. and Mrs. Nahmens, Tinker probably likes it that way.

Tinker was originally a native of Mendocino county, where the Nahmen family has a ranch.

"We went up there over the Memorial Day weekend," recalls Nahmens. "When we got there our dog, Chief, jumped from the car and ran straight for the barn.

"The doe had apparently given birth to the usual two fawns there only a short time before."

After discovering the unexpected contents of the barn, Nahmens continued, he instructed his family to stay as far away from the structure as possible.

MOTHER FLEES

It was hoped the doe, who fled when the human beings arrived, would come back and take her young into the woods.

"She did come back and she did lead the fawns back to the woods," Nahmens continued, "but the next day this one came back down again."

The family had only a few days to spend at the ranch and, before it was over, Tinker was pretty firmly established as a member of the family.

"Naturally, a deer that young couldn't eat by itself," Mrs. Nahmens recalls, "so we got a baby's bottle and nipple and borrowed some formula from a neighbor and started to feed her ourselves."

The next couple of months were the ones in which Tinker got better acquainted with civilization and with Chief, the year-old black dog who also lives with the Nahmens.

Wading . . . . . . in a plastic pool at the William Nahmens' home in Atherton, Tinker the fawn communes with Chief, the dog, with whom she became fast friends during a three-month sojourn.

The fawn also got to like the Nahmens' youngsters' plastic wading pool, and also the attractions of travel.

"Tinker got so he liked to jump in the car and go to town when I'd go shopping," Mrs. Nahmens reports. "We'd get quite a number of stares from passersby, who'd see Tinker and Chief riding together with me."

The dog, cat and the deer also used to enjoy all sorts of games, most of which consisted of chasing each other.

BACK TO WOODS

Last week, though, it was decided that Tinker should go back to the woods—at least as far as Skyline boulevard—to a ranch whose owner has a pet deer already. So Tinker was taken there to await the time when she grows big enough to be one of the attractions at a children's playland facility in San Jose, where he can be a friend to everybody.

Nahmens, who is superintendent for the California Water Service Co. and whose home adjoins their Bear Gulch reservoir just west of Atherton, knows deer very well.

"There's a herd of about 20 or 25 of them that live around here and which make periodic trips to Woodside and back," he points out.

"Tinker was getting so she'd eat the roses—which seem to be the favorite fruit of all deer—and we had to have her moved because we were afraid for the neighbors' gardens."

The little deer had plenty of opportunities to join the local herd, but never did, he added.

Besides keeping track of the local deer population, Nahmens has had opportunity to watch—and help—other forms of local wild life.

Once he found and raised two fox puppies after their mother had been killed by neighborhood dogs.

Winners Get Prizes, Too:

Bargain Carnival Rolls On

Two area women, both of whom had entered just once in the Menlo Park merchants' August Bargain Carnival, this week were awarded $100 in merchandise certificates for the first two weeks of the month-long sales event.

The two, both mothers of three children, said they felt pretty sure the money would come in handy for clothing and equipping their children for school.

Winner of the first week's award was Mrs. John Julius of 2150 Ashton avenue, who registered for the contest at Mary's Stork to 'Teen shop — one of the 28 progressive downtown merchants who have joined in putting on the event.

Mrs. Julius left for a week's vacation at Santa Cruz before the first drawing, however, and couldn't be presented with her award until early this week.

Winner of the second week's $100 in merchandise certificates was Mrs. William Nahmens, 102 Reservoir road, Atherton. She registered at Thompson's Stationers.

"Just a minute. I've got to sit down!" Mrs. Nahmens said Monday, when informed that she had won the merchandise orders.

Both women had something else in common: They said they'd "never won anything" in previous contests or drawings.

Awarding the two prizes only starts things off in the month-long sales event, counselled Merchants' Sale Committee Chairman Alfred Weber this week. There will be another drawing for $100 next Monday morning and a grand, final drawing Aug. 29. At the latter, a total of $250 worth of merchandise orders will be given away.

According to Weber, the orders are given in the form of $10 orders, all of which may be used on one purchase. Or they can be split up and spent at any of the stores participating.

In addition to the awards, Weber pointed out, the merchants participating have scheduled sales events in their own stores, at which value-packed merchandise may be obtained throughout the month at substantial discounts.

There's no obligation to buy anything to be eligible to compete in the prize drawing, the chairman pointed out.

Those who want to join in the fun—and the chance at a valuable merchandise award prize—have but to fill out the appropriate slip—giving their name and address — at the store of any participating merchant.

First Winners . . . . . . of $100 worth of merchandise orders, in the Menlo Park August Bargain Carnival, were Mrs. John Julius, 2150 Ashton avenue, left, shown with her merchandise certificates and Mrs. William Nahmens, 102 Reservoir road, Atherton, shown reading the notice of her award. There'll be more prizes given as the month-long sales event continues; persons wishing to enter the contest can sign up at the stores of any one of the 28 downtown merchants, without obligation. —Recorder photos

Traffic Board Fails to Meet

The Menlo Park Traffic Safety Commission, which was to have met Aug. 10, failed to get a quorum of members together on that date and, consequently, all upcoming business was put over to the group's September meeting.

On the agenda were discussion of whether or not to close one of the Safeway market's parking lot entrances onto Middle avenue, and discussion with residents concerning the need for stop signs in two locations: at White Oak drvie and Oak Knoll lane and at the Nash-Santa Margarita intersection.

Council Reviews Projects

City manager John R. Johnson presented the city council with a proposed capital outlay improvement budget at this week's meeting. After viewing slides of improvements made over the last fiscal year, the council looked at the newly proposed budget.

Priority one shows installation of sprinklers and turfing at La Entrada school in the Stanford Hills area for $6,000, turfing and sprinkler installation at the O'Connor school for $4000 and placing sturdy, comfortable benches in the city's parks for $750.

Featured on priority two are a $950 "golf cage" for practice golfing, resurfacing of two tennis courts at Burgess Park for $2000, night lights for the courts, to enable persons to play after dark, were tabulated at $5000 and play equipment for Burgess, $3000.

The sum of $2000 for playground equipment at Nealon Park and the police station bonds of $15,500 were listed on priority three.

The city has already allocated $10,000 from last year's budget for an acre of land in the Sharon estate to be used for a park. On the agenda for this year is the purchase of two acre lots at $10,500 each. During the last fiscal year $25,000 was set aside for a building on Belle Haven park. A new figure reads $30,000.

Still very much in question is the building to be established at Nealon Park, for which the city has already pledged $7000. Whether this amount will be raised in the form of a loan has not yet been decided.

Other matters discussed were an underground electrical system for the civic center, to which the entire park area might eventually be tied in. This would add to the landscaping appearances of the park.

Rough furnishing and lighting for the new police station will cost an estimated $5000. Other factors for consideration were furtherance of off street parking in addition to the existing three lots, one of which will soon be taken over by the post office.

Plans are in progress now to work a half and half cooperative system with downtown business owners on the trees which are planted in tubs.

The library has also requested that the $12,500 sum for buying new library books be continued.

A breakdown of the capital outlay budget will be presented for further study at the next meeting.

Present 10-Cent Doubling Seen

A good possibility that Woodside's property taxes will be doubled next year was disclosed this week as US census figures revealed an unexpectedly low population figure for the town.

The current levy is 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The Federal census report gives Woodside an unofficial 3580 people, far below the estimate of 5163 made during and since the town's incorporation four years ago.

"We expected we'd have 4800 at least," Town Clerk Mrs. Irma Lewis explained in expressing official surprise. She said town officials presumed this figure would be more accurate, based on the County Master Plan's estimate of 3.4 persons per electrical connection.

This new wrinkle in the tax picture will figure prominently at a public hearing on the 1960-61 fiscal budget, slated for 8 p.m., Aug. 29, at the Woodside town hall.

Most salient reason for the low population figure, said Mrs. Lewis, is 'the unusually large number of Woodside citizens who maintain homes in San Francisco and elsewhere."

Actually, she explained, the previous estimate of 5163 was undoubtedly too high because it failed to account for the large number of single persons in the area. This resulted from multiplying the number of registered voters by three, and at incorporation time voter registration was unusually active because of the important issues involved.

Under the new population figure, Mrs. Lewis estimated, Woodside will get $17,500 "in lieu" money (motor vehicle registration and license fees), compared with $25,500 last year.

The State Controller's office has advised that the census figure probably" will affect Woodside's December allocation and "most certainly" affect succeeding ones. Final census figures are expected to be on President's Eisenhower's desk by December 1 at the latest.

Present gas tax and motor vehicle registration fees make each registered voter worth $7.84 to Woodside.

Possible Witness:

Police Seek Citizen's Aid In Hit-Run Case in Area

The man who first saw the body of Wallace H. Raines, 32-year-old hit-run victim whose body was found on Bayshore freeway north of Marsh road early Sunday, this week was asked to make himself known to police.

Officer David Stone of the Menlo Park police made the "official" discovery of the body after he had been accosted by a man who told him, "There's a dead man's body lying on the freeway," and gave the approximate position.

The man, a six-foot-tall Negro who wears glasses and a goatee, approached the patrolling officer at Willow road and Newbridge street. Officer Stone said he appeared to be about 35 years of age, was of thin build, and possibly drove a 1957 Ford automobile. Stone said he thought the man might be a resident of the 1200 or 1300 block of Willow road.

Raines, the hit-run victim, was a resident of Sunnyvale. He was let out of a car at Harbor boulevard in Redwood City some time before his body was found about two miles south of that traffic interchange, and was apparently attempting to hitch-hike.

Local police asked that the man who first saw his body contact either Menlo Park police or the California Highway patrol.

* * * *

Meanwhile, Sergeant John Zimmerman of the California Highway Patrol said Tuesday that a car owned by a Palo Alto electronic engineer had been "postively identifed" as the one which hit Raines.

The engineer, who gave himself up and who then bailed out of the San Mateo county jail, was identified by the CHP as John V. Rock, 28. He was charged with manslaughter and felony hit-run driving.

Sgt. Zimmerman said it is hoped that the citizen who first called police to the scene would be able to help set the time of the crash, or that he might have seen the hit-run auto pass him at high speed or in a location near where Raines' body was found.

It was evident, he said, that the auto had struck a victim in the legs and that he was thrown over the hood of the vehicle.

The latter was impounded at Huss Automotive, Menlo Park.

Raines is survived by his widow, Betty, of 1749 Kildare court, Sunnyvale.

According to members of the faimly, Raines had been returning from a search for work in Mendocino county, in the company of two brothers-in-law who reside in Redwood City.

They let him out of the car at Harbor boulevard at about 5 a.m. and he apparently attempted to hitch-hike south to his home, while they returned to their separate addresses.

Raines was a native of North Carolina.

Atherton Area Faces Vote Next Tuesday

Voters in a portion of Atherton and North Fair Oaks will cast ballots on whether or not their section will annex to the Menlo Park Elementary School District.

The area, bounded by the railroad tracks, the Atherton town boundary north of Jennings lane, Middlefield road, Encina avenue, 16th avenue, Marsh and Middlefield roads, presently is in the Redwood City school district.

Polling place for the Tuesday voting will be at 92 Jennings lane.

Residents of the area have secured permission from the county board of supervisors to disassociate themselves from the Redwood City school district, if they vote to do so. Menlo Park school district trustees have agreed to let them join the local agency.

At their meeting Tuesday night, trustees of the Menlo Park agency noted that, by law, they should meet to canvass the votes on Aug. 30. A quorum of board members will not be present in the community on that date, however, so the official count will be made at the Sept. 6 meeting of the board.

There are 147 registered voters in the area which it is proposed to annex to the school district.

Neighbors Save Residence Here

Alert neighbors yesterday called firemen to a Menlo Park home whose occupant had gone to work, thereby getting a possibly serious blaze extinguished before it could do major damage.

As it was, the fire did an estimated $50 damage to the home at 1151 Hollyburne. It started in a chair, the firemen said, and was probably due to careless smoking.

John D. Taylor, occupant of the dwelling, said he'd left the house at 7 a.m. to go to work.

Speaker . . .

Firemen Put Out Blaze on Pole

Firemen at 1:19 a.m. Friday were called to the north entrance to St. Patrick's Seminary, where a power transformer was found to be short circuiting.

They used high-pressure water hoses to extinguish the resulting blaze, called the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. and stood by until emergency equipment of that firm arrived.

Two Localites At New London

Two Menlo Park men have been selected by the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary to participate in "Activity Week" at the Coast Guard academy at New London, it was announced this week.

The two are James Saunders of 861 Cambridge avenue and Kenneth Hadden, 766 Live Oak avenue.

"Activity Week" is an annual progra msponsored by the Coast Guard Auxiliary and League throughout the country to acquaint selected high school students with the Coast Guard academy and its cadet program.

The local youths flew to the east coast base, for the event, which is being held Aug. 17-20.

A total of 125 Menlo Park residents were among the 1299 persons to be admitted to Sequoia Hospital for treatment during the month of July, the facility's regular statistical report showed this week.

Also, a total of 28 Woodside residents and 24 Atherton residents were among those to be admitted for treatment.

The average stay per patient was 5.1 days.

The hospital was the scene of 207 births, 22 deaths and 226 major operations during the month.

GRASS FIRE IN N.F.O.

Firemen Saturday were called to the 700 block of 14th avenue, where grass had caught fire after a resident failed to extinguish a rubbish fire.

Central Rent Negotiations Continuing

How much the Menlo Park School District is going to have to pay for its extended use of the old Central school building remained a matter of argument this week.

An attorney for the Claude T. Lindsay Co. said that the school district's offer of $700 was "not acceptable;" school trustees decided they'd continue negotiations rather than pay more.

Alvin M. Frank, attorney for the Lindsay company which bought the old school at 1300 El Camino Real, wrote that the $1500 first asked by the firm was a "just and fair" price, but added that Lindsay would settle for $1000.

The school district's insurance carrier previously had stated an opinion that $700 was a fair price for the extended stay, most of which was caused by water damage which occurred when a pipe broke, just before the school district was ready to move into its new headquarters at 555 Glenwood avenue.

School District Business Manager John E. Richert observed that, if the district turns down Lindsay's "rock bottom" offer, it might be sued for the full $1500 amount.

He said that if the district accepted the $1000 figure, a total of $787 could be charged to the insurance company for water damage and, on a pro rata basis, the district would have to assume responsibility for $213 because it extended the contract for completion of the building.

Trustee William Platt observed that the negotiations were costing a lot of administrative time. He moved that the district accept Lindsay's figpre, but his motion died for a lack of a second.

After that, board members moved to continue negotiations with the insurance company, "in the light of Lindsay's letter."

SRI Uses 'Echo' In Experiments

Stanford Research Institute has been making use of the nation's "Echo" satellite to further experiments of its own, it was announced this week.

The institute's scientists have bounced radar echos off of it, and are using data compiled in their analysis of atmospheric layers and their influence on radio communication.

Device used for the radar contacts is the institute's 51-foot steerable dish antenna west of Menlo Park.

Institute staffers reported their first radar contact with the balloon at 12:03 a.m. Saturday morning. Although the satellite had made previous passes over the area, the time it passed over had not been accurately predicted.

George Collins At Meeting

George Collins, Alma street, special agent here for the Herb Schilbe agency of the Prudential Insurance Co., will attend the company's ordinary agencies training conference at the Empress Hotel in Victoria, B. C., next week.

During the three-day training conference, the Menlo Park resident will attend several sessions and panel discussions relative to advanced life insurance underwriting.

Tells Board Members:

Another Contractor Says He Can Operate Area's Dump

Directors of the South County Refuse District Monday reluctantly agreed to let a private contractor submit proposals, plans and cost estimates for operating the district's dump east of Menlo Park.

But, Director Ira Bonde of Menlo Park stressed, the district is determined to operate the dump a year on a trial basis.

He urged Robert W. Martin, vice-president of the Solid Waste Disposal Co., to "have patience."

At the end of the year, Bonde said, the district will decide on the basis of the 12-month performance whether to continue operating it or again hire a contractor.

Only two weeks ago, the board "fired" the Disco Corp., which had operated the dump under contract for the past two years, and handed district manager Dean R. Haug sweeping powers to operate the disposal facility.

Martin said that the board's decision to operate the dump itself caught his firm by surprise. He asked to be allowed to submit "concrete" plans and cost estimates.

Bonde, who represents Menlo Park, said the board was was "disturbed" about the past program under a private contractor.

"Apparently it was properly engineered, the directors leaned over backwards towards the contractor, experts consoled them, and nothing happened except Disco lost a lot of money," Bonde commented.

ASKS DELAY

Martin, who actually initiated the Disco operation and who quit after operating the plant for three months, rose to speak after district directors had approved the demolition of the unsuccessful Disco incinerator and the clearing-away of the hopper-conveyor attachments of the long-smoking burner.

But Martin pleaded with the board not to destroy the hopper since, he indicated, the plans of his firm include the use of the hopper-conveyor system.

The incinerator will be torn down and hauled away by Oct. 25, the board decided, but the board relented and said they'd listen to Martin again until Sept. 12. Meantime, the hopper and conveyor could stay in place.

Another small fire broke out at the dump's "fill and cover" operation site Monday night. County firemen were called, and got it under control when dump workers shoved the burning substance into the water.

HOBOS ABOUND

This has been "Hobo Week" at the playgrounds of the Ravenswood Recreation and Park District.

On cook-out day boys and girls used hobo stoves they had made during craft activities to cook hot dogs, hamburgers and even a few pancakes.

Maintenance Men at Schools Draw Kudos

School District trustees here this week issued a motion of commendation to the maintenance crews of the schools, for the work accomplished in refurbishing the schools during the past summer.

Their encomium was added after District Business Manager John Richert reported that most of the jobs which were scheduled at the start of the summer have been completed, and that the district's maintenance cost per school is well below that of other school agencies in the area.

Richert pointed out that some of the schools are now growing to an age at which mere revarnishing and touch-up painting can't do the job, and some major repairs might be in the offing within the next few years.

Also, the business manager said, the maintenance crew seems to face a constant backlog of items which it never gets time to deal with.

School board member Elwood Williams said that if the backlog of projects remains so great that the maintenance crew might get discouraged, new men should be added or the work should be "farmed out" to contractors and finished.

School Superintendent Dr. Mel Homfeld added that the district is buying about two calssrooms ful of furniture each year.

If this is all that is purchased, it would take 50 years to replace all of the furniture in the district, he said, and cautioned that the board must look ahead to expenditures in this category, also.

Sierra Names Plant Officer

The appointment of C. John Loring as production control supervisor of Sierra Electronic corporation division of Philco Corp., was announced here today by W. Feldscher, division vice president and general manager.

A member of the board of directors, Loring received his BS in Business Administration from the University of California. He served two years as an instrutcor in the U.S. Army Ordnance Division at Fort Ord and joined Sierra in 1958 as assistant production control supervisor.

BELT A-BURNING

Firemen were called to 3151 Middlefield road at 9:22 p.m. Sunday, when a faulty belt on an automatic washing machine started to smoke.

FALSE ALARM

Firemen Sunday at 4:47 were called to Greenoaks-Kavanaugh school by what proved to be a false alarm. They chalked it up to malicious mischief.

Sister Helps:

Boy, 12, Stays in Driver's Seat of Tandem Bike He Built

Twelve-year-old boys are as gallant as anybody but when it comes to riding bicycles built for two, they have to stay in the driver's seat.

This is the experience of Kenny Hankland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenver Hankland of 2327 Warner Range avenue who recently completed a tandem two-wheeler for himself, after securing the necessary parts at a police auction.

In spite of tradition, Kenney's sister Leona has to ride behind, providing push instead of direction.

The front position, avers the lad, requires the heavier of the riders as a matter of balance. Besides, he says, it's harder to work the pedals up there.

A Recorder carrier who covers Sharon Heights for the paper, Ken has only used his bicycle once on the job. Leona went along, of course, and provided the power while her big brother steered from subscriber to subscriber.

Building such a bicycle isn't hard, says Ken.

What's most needed is a good, sharp hacksaw and a friend with a welding torch.

Besides the parts he got at the police auction, Ken bought some new ones to make the job of assembly easier.

And in spite of the fact that Leona has a head start on most people, when it comes to becoming a back-seat driver, Ken assures that she's very cooperative and doesn't make too many wry comments about the steering as done from the front seat.

Bike Built for Two . . .

. . . Twelve-year-old Recorder carrier Kenny Hankland got some bicycle parts at a recent police auction and assembled the tandem machine shown above. Since he was building the machine, it was only natural that he'll put himself in the driver's seat but his sister Leona, 9, says she doesn't mind. —Recorder photo

Heller Estate Estimate Near 5 Million

The late Clara Hellman Heller, who died Aug. 19 of last year, left an estate estimated at $4,899,306, it was learned when an inventory of her estate was filed early this week in San Mateo County Superior Court.

Mrs. Heller's property was concentrated mainly in oil securities. The inventory showed she had a $3,725,751 interest in Long Beach oil property and an interest in other Southern California oil properties estimated at $1,173,555.

Her estate, at 219 Atherton avenue, currently is being considered for sale by the estate. Highest bid for about nine acres of the property to be considered thus far is $217,000; it has not yet been approved by the San Mateo County Superior Court.

Most of Mrs. Heller's estate was divided among her three grandchildren: Emanuel Clarence Heller of Atherton, Alfred E. Heller of Grass Valley and Elizabeth Heller of San Francisco.

Mrs. Heller, who died at the age of 81, was the widow of the late Emanuel S. Heller.

ILLEGAL FIRE

Firemen Thursday at 9:33 p.m. were called to 917 Fremont street, where a resident was burning rubbish, outside legal burning hours, in a 50-gallon drum.

Estate Re-Cut In Woodside

The tentative map of the Mountain Home subdvision on the McKee estate property will be resubmitted Thursday, Aug. 25, to the Woodside Planning Commission at its regular meeting at 8 p.m. in town hall.

The map includes five lots, one an acre and the others 3½ acres each.

Two applications for land divisions will also be considered. Public hearing continues on the Meyerhoffer request to divide 12.4 acres into two lots in the Portola Hills subdivision. The other is a bid to create two lots from 7.3 acres of irregular land of the Alexander estate, between Manzanita way and Whiskey Hill road.

Drivers Hurt As Autos Crash

Both drivers involved in an Aug. 10 auto accident at Middle avenue and El Camino Real were taken to Palo Alto Hospital for treatment.

The drivers were David G. Herlinger, 16, of Los Altos and Charlie G. Blaylock, 38, of 850 Coleman avenue in Menlo Park.

Police said the accident occurred as Herlinger attempted a left turn from the highway's northbound lanes. Blaylock was southbound.

REGISTER

Ravenswood City School District residents who are new to the area are urged to register their children at the school district office, 2160 Euclid avenue, East Palo Alto, before the fall opening day is too much closer.

The reason: Planning for kindergarten classes and for number of students per class in the primary grades must be done before the actual first-day count of students is made.

Driver Falls As Autos Hit

One passenger was ejected from an auto and its driver was injured in a crash Sunday evening involving two autos on Valparaiso avenue.

Taken to Palo Alto-Stanford hospital for treatment of injuries was Harlan Leroy Wynn, 18-year-old navy cook whose home is at 2071 Ashton avenue. He was tossed out of the car he was driving when it became involved with an auto operated by Vernon Edward Moller, 29, of Palo Alto, who was attempting a left turn into a driveway at 298 Valparaiso at the time of the crash.

Franklin L. Johnston, 16, of 3110 Alameda de las Pulgas, a passenger in Wynn's car, also was taken to the hospital, according to Atherton police.

Wynn was cited for attempting to pass over the double white line, police added.

PEEWEES

There will be another game between Ravenswood Recreation and Park District's Farrell Park Peewees and the Brentwood Peewees on Tuesday, August 23, at Farrell Park from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Both teams will meet at Jack Farrell Park. Brentwood Peewees will be required to furnish their own transportation to and from the park. In their first encounter Brentwood won by a score of 21-10.

MOHR EXHIBIT

Mrs. Louise Hobbs Mohr is holding a "one-man" exhibit of her oil paintings at the College Terrace library in Palo Alto.

Son Is Born To J. Scaronis

A baby boy, weighing in at 5 pounds 13 ounces, was born Tuesday evening to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Scaroni Jr., 8 Politzer drive.

The baby, born at Palo Alto Stanford hospital, is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Scaroni of Santa Cruz and Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Moore of Menlo Park. His mother (nee Margaret Moore) is a member of the pioneer Menlo Park family of the late Aaron W. Gales; the family established its home here in 1886.

Waiting to greet their new brother, when he arrives home, are Joseph A. Scaroni III, 7; Susan Anita, 5, and John Christopher, 3.

Miss Krug Gets Scholarship

SEATTLE (Special) — A Menlo Park resident recently received a scholarship to Seattle University for the 1960-61 academic year.

She is Mary Ellen Krug, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orvis C. Krug, 216 Concord drive.

Miss Krug is a June graduate of Menlo-Atherton High School.

Stephen Moore In Med School

Stephen Albert Moore of 1825 Bay Laurel drive, Menlo Park, has been accepted for this fall's freshman class of the Emory University School of Medicine at Atlanta, Ga.

The class will include 72 graduates of some 22 colleges and universities.

Detlev Lange Signs at Davis

Detlev Lange, son of Mrs. Charlotte Matting of 2044 Sterling avenue, has registered at the University of California at Davis for the coming fall, it was announced from there this week.

Presently a student at Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo, he is transferring in order to major in pre-veterinary medicine.

Suspect Held:

$3600 Slated For Furnishings At New School

School trustees here Tuesday observed they'd have to make $3600 go a long way, if the newly-completed Laurel school is to be made totally habitable.

The $3600 is all of the money in the district budget, which has been assigned for Laurel school furnishings. It's got to buy:

1. Cabinet work for classrooms, such as coat and lunchbox racks, and other cabinets for offices;

2. Fencing to go around the kindergarten area at the school, cost of which is estimated at between $300 and $400;

3. Retaining walls around trees on the school grounds, cost of which is estimated at $1500;

4. Tanbark for the primary and kindergarten play areas, cost of which is estimated at $800 to $1000, and

5. Valves for sprinkler systems, cost of which is estimated at between $400 and $500.

The trustees decided to follow the order of priority shown above. If they can't get all the work done with the money now in hand, they indicated, they might dip into district reserves.

School District business manager John Richert, in presenting the order of priority, pointed out that all contingency monies in the district's bond building fund have been used up. The $3600 was set aside in the current operating budget, however, to help get the new school into operation.

He said that the items listed were all "musts" which would have to be completed before the rains and some of the items, such as the kindergarten fence, would have to be completed before the start of school.

The district, he said, will use some playground equipment which it already owns, until more funds become available. More extensive equipment was called for in a master plan for site development at Laurel, which was presented two weeks ago.

GROUNDS WORK

The valves for sprinklers are needed at this time so the district can start perimeter planting and ground cover around buildings, according to Superintendent Dr. Mel Homfeld.

The board agreed, when purchasing the property, to provide planting around the schoolyard fence to keep the neighbors happy.

Homfeld said that the present list doesn't include the cost of sprinkler systems under large areas to be turfed, or the actual turfing of the areas. This will have to wait, he said, because the cost is estimated at about $10,000.

In other reports concerning construction projects, the trustees were told that:

A contract for remodeling of administrative space at Oak Knoll school, at a cost of $1900, has been let;

The state division of architecture is now studying plans for remodelling at Encinal school.

NET TOURNAMENT

A novice net tournament is set for the Belle Haven Park recreation program, during the week beginning Aug. 29. Signups and 50 cents registration fee are now being taken at the park for the five separate divisions. The divisions will include girls 12-14 and 15-17 years of age, boys 12-14 and 15-17, and an adult classification for those persons 18 years and over who are interested in participating. Signups will close Aug. 24.

Police Checking for More Patients in MP Abortion Case

Menlo Park police this week were checking a list of names of possible patrons of Sam Setrakian, 68, who last week was arrested here on charges of performing an abortion.

Setrakian, who lives at 1259 Hoover street, is to appear beofre Municipal Judge Frank Comaich on Aug. 29 to face the charges. He has already admitted a single abortion attempt on a minor, according to police.

Meanwhile, Acting Inspector Ed Schilds of the Menlo Park department, said that he is "checking for further possible 'patients'."

He added that the 17-year-old girl on whom Setrakian is alleged to have operated was still in Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco, where she was taken by her parents after reporting cramps and fever ,as of Monday. She was released and sent home Tuesday.

Setrakian, a retired government employee who received a ment employee who receives a disability pension, was arrested Thursday at his home by officers of the Menlo Park police department and the district attorney's office.

The girl on whom the operation asserted was performed told San Francisco police she had become pregnant after meeting a "beatnik" in San Francisco and accompanying him to his "pad."

She later told officers of the San Mateo county district attorney's office that she had been operated on in Menlo Park, and that the abortion had been arranged through a friend.

The friend later supplied officers with Setrakian's address.

Officers said they arrested the local man at his home and confiscated surgical equipment as evidence. They also found $1050 in cash in the house.

Setrakian, according to officers, said he charged $150 for the abortion.

Taken to jail, he posted $5250 bail.

Inspector A. L. Lamport of the district attorney's office said this week that it has been more than 10 years since an abortionist has been arrested for operating on a juvenile.

Police Chief George Potter said that officers have suspected there was an "abortion mill" in the county for tht past two or three months.

'Philosophy' Talks Are Slated

Concerned with developing a "philosophy of education," school district trustees here outlined a set of topics for meetings during the coming nine months concerned with the theme.

District Board Chairman Kenneth Sayre submitted the list, after consultation with administrators.

The board decided several months ago to pursue the purely education topics, since the district's building program is now largely out of the way.

The outcomes of the discussions, in which board members are to participate and in which administration presentations may also be made, are to be incorporated in the district's policy statement.

The topics, and the dates on which they will be discussed:

Sept. 20: Local Option in Public Schools.

Oct. 4: Elementary Schools (What policies can be made or changed?)

Oct. 18: Teaching as a Profession and Teacher Certification.

Nov. 15: Discipline.

Dec. 6: Homework.

Police Net Suspect In Burglary

A burglary suspect who Sheriff's deputies feel returned to the same well once too often wound up in jail last week.

He is Mert Combs, 20, 1135 Laurel avenue, East Palo Alto, who was booked as the suspect in a one-ton burglary at B & L Wrecking Yard, 1059 E. Bayshore frontage road, East Palo Aito.

Combs was picked up Thursday afternoon at the wrecking yard after assertedly trying to dump some of the heavy loot stolen from the yard the previous Wednesday night.

Owner Clevie Belcher said he recognized some of the metal parts in Combs' truckload of scrap. Combs said he "didn't know they got there," according to the Sheriff's office report.

Deputies checked Combs' residence and found a number of radiators scattered about which Belcher said were taken from his salvage yard.

Belcher estimated that scrap valued at $125 was taken, and most of it was recovered.

As We See It:

Tax Rate, Assessed Value Not Good Index of Economy

News that the city's valuation is higher than expected is news of a mixed blessing, sort of.

When valuation goes up, the tax rate naturally can be lowered. Conversely, when the valuation falls below par — the latter being inevitable in the course of the inflationary spiral — the tax rate per $100 assessed valuation has to rise.

The true measure of whether or not taxes are "too high" can't be measured either by the rate, or by the assessed valuation. It can only be measured by what we get for our money.

If the quality of service provided by our various governmental subdivisions is high, then those political subdivisions are justified in asking that a fair price be charged for it. If people burdened by federal taxes, family expenses, house and auto payments and the like feel that they've got to trim the budget somewhat and that the municipal services they may passively enjoy are the things they'll miss the least, then they should put in a squawk.

Fortunately for the public agency boys, they have a good index as to when taxes get "too high" or the level of services falls "too low." All they have to do is listen to such remarks as, "I can't afford to live in this town" on the one hand, or "why doesn't the government provide more . . ." on the other, and try to strike a happy medium, trimming here and there and adding more services elsewhere to keep the critical remarks in balance.

Tax rates and assessed valuations have little to do with it.

Young People Show They Can Do a Job

Thanks to the community's young people, the Nealon Park recreation building fund is $675 richer than it was two weeks ago.

And with the contribution, the persons who put on the Country Fair at Burgess Park Aug. 7 also handed out a couple of lessons of value to everybody.

First, they showed that persons of high school age, normally not considered able to organize anything, can do it very well. In fact, they can do an admirable job of putting together an enjoyable, large, varied community event.

Next, they showed themselves ahead of the pack, when it comes to attempting to get money for a worthwhile community endeavor. The Nealon park building fund is short several thousands of dollars of those needed to qualify for a grant from the Lucie Stern Foundation, which could in itself make up the final $5000 of the $30,000 project.

Another thing: The crowds attending the fair probably contained hundreds of persons who normally wouldn't take advantage of our community's recreational facilities. We hope these sometime visitors had their eyes opened to the fact that the parks really do get used; they they really answer a need.

All in all, with the lessons and the fun, the Country Fair put on by the youngsters was a complete success. We hope the energy and direction shown in its planning and execution can be maintained, so that there'll be another one next year.

Planners Not the 'Baddies' —It's Nature of the Job

The Menlo Park planning commission has a genius for getting itself involved in proceedings in which it's impossible to find a decision that'll make everybody happy.

Last week, for instance, they had to decide whether or not to allow a tent to be erected to serve as a temporary church; next week, they'll have to decide whether a telescoping radio antenna is legal or not.

In the first case, they got off lucky; nobody accused them of being "enemies of organized religion" although by their action they prevented an establishment of religion from being put up; in the case coming up, they'll either make the bulk of the Stanford Hills residents unhappy, or draw down the wrath of radio amateurs from just about any part of the country you want to name.

The planners are in this position more often than most of the governing bodies in the city, not because they're stupid, oafish or obtuse but rather because of the nature of the job they hold.

Very few restrictions which restrict the rights of an individual or group can be made, without making the party or parties affected somewhat unhappy.

On the other hand, there are few occasions on which the accommodation of special pleaders will meet with universal approval on the part of the neighbors.

We don't envy the planners their job; no matter how they decide matters of this kind, there'll be people around who won't thank them for the decision.

It's up to us to remember that the city planning commissioners are all volunteers sincerely working for what they believe to be the best interests of the community.

Though we can't always approve of their decisions and though sometimes the decisions go squarely against us as individuals, we must not lose respect for a group of men who are sincerely trying to do the best job they know how to do.

TELLS US:

From the "Pacifica Tribune" comes word:

"The slender billed Pussinus Tenuirostris and the Pussinus Griesus, better known as the Tasmanian and New Zealand mutton birds or shearwaters, have made their annual appearance off the California coastline.

"These birds were observed this week from spots along the coastside looking like a thick black bank over the horizon. They are the size of gulls and fly close to the water looking for colonies of anchovies on which they feed.

"The birds leave their natural habitat in Australia and New Zealand in late April and early May, fly across the Tasman Sea and swing north to the seas around Japan. Here the flocks, numbering several million, swing arounda the north Pacific reaching Alaska in August.

"From August to September the birds, following this clockwise plan, turn south, flying off the coasts of British Columbia, Oregon and California . . ."

When a carport and fence caught fire here last week, Recorder Weathermouse Terry Burley was right on the job.

The fire occurred next door to Terry's house, and the youthful reporter and another neighbor were the first to turn a garden hose on the blaze.

Then, in answer to a call from the newspaper office, he gave the details which allowed the Recorder to get a short story into last week's newspaper, just a few minutes before the paper went to press.

Observers at the recent "Country Fair" put on at Burgess Park took statistical note that,

For the record, the classroom clocks at the new Laurel School were started on Tuesday, Aug. 2.

Sunday, a baseball umpire at a game at Flood Park explained the thinking of such arbiters:

"I'm always right. Jesse James is the name."

A new weapon for the city of Menlo Park is the slide collection which was presented this week at an informal meeting of the city council. The slides, which showed the major investmnts in the capital outlay budget over the last fiscal year, concentrated mainly on park, playground and school ground areas.

Turfing, sprinkler systems, rest room facilities, and playground equipment took a large portion of the spotlight on the "silvered screen."

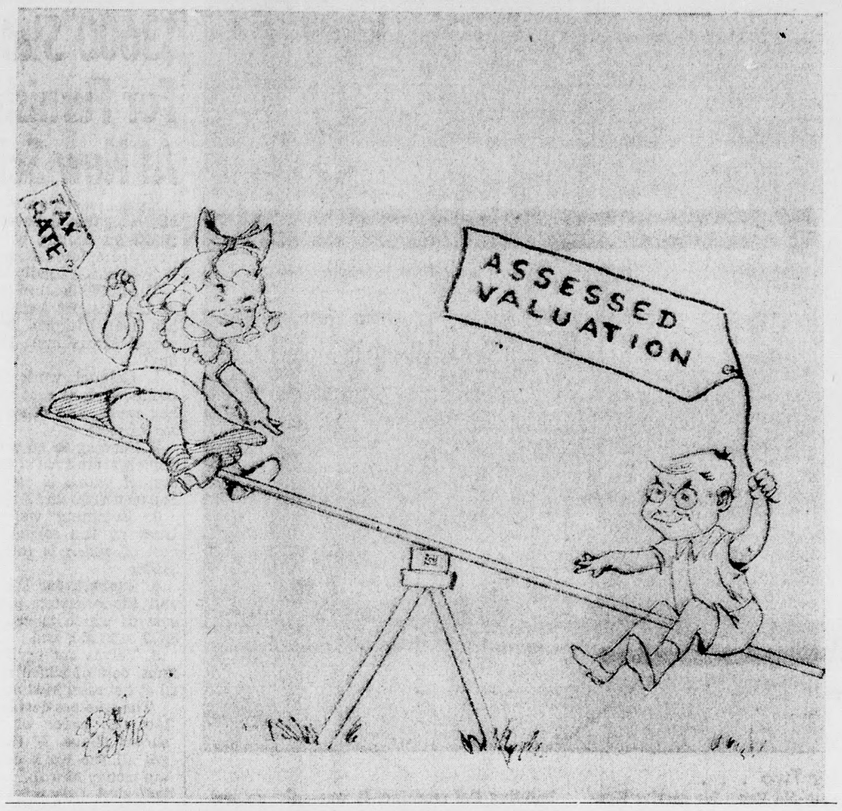

Other slides were of the street trees which have been planted on the Alma street side of the Southern Pacific tracks facing Burgess Park and the civic center. These trees, and others planted on residential streets and "potted" on Santa Cruz avenue are of varieties which add bright color to the town during certain seasons of the year.

School district trustees this week dipped into some previously uncommitted funds with which to buy some fencing around the Laurel school kindergarten and some coat racks for the classrooms, because money hasn't been put into the building budget for these items.

Money for furnishings for the teachers room—some $600 worth — did make the first budget, however, and it was generally agreed that the "order of priority" implied wasn't a true reflection of what the school administration thinks is really the most important.

Municipal Report:

Fire District Continues Efforts To Meet Underwriter Requests

Though there have been no new stations built since the construction of the Menlo Park Fire District's present headquarters station in 1956, the department has continued to add to its equipment through the years.

The financing, as has been traditional with the fire district, has always been out of current funds.

Whether or not the district's financial reserves will always be adequate to meet such needs is a moot point, however, and the type of equipment required in the future isn't known yet.

Basically, the fire department has been hacking away at the requirements set by engineers of the Board of Fire Underwriters of the Pacific in 1952, when the district had a survey of its needs made.

The underwriters asked that all engines be equipped with 1000-gallon-per-minute pumps; the district has, since 1956, replaced two smaller units with such machines in addition to replacing obsolete or aging fire trucks.

The stringing of alarm circuit lines in East Palo Alto and in Menlo Park is in answer to another requirement of the underwriters that an alarm system be installed in the various business districts and commercial areas of the district.

If the district has to have another station, it'll probably be on Sharon estate lands facing Sand Hill road; in fact, a site is already reserved there.

But the subdivider and the fire district negotiated for this property several years ago when it was proposed that both the Sharon estate and the Stonford University lands across Sand Hill would be developed as residential areas.

More recently Stanford executives have made it known that they're hoping their lands can be used for "academic reserve" purposes and the Sharon Heights developer has indicated that a large chunk of that area will be turned into a golf course and other parts of it will be developed as a super- low-land-coverage, administratize zone.

With about 900 acres of Stanford land turned into a linear accelerator reservation, and with a large percentage of the Sharon estate turned into a golf course, there'll be considerably less residential area for the firemen to protect. Open space doesn't produce fires.

And although engineers for the fire underwriters say they would like to see enough fire stations so that no "run" from a station to a fire is more than a mile in distance in residential areas, even the firemen are willing to concede that this is pretty much an impractical ideal.

Where there's a lot of open space, the maximum "run" can be longer, of course.

Meanwhile, the district has a couple of problems other than distance, which have influenced the location of fire station.

First among these is the fact that the district is bisected by the railroad tracks.

There aren't many grade crossings in the district, and the possibility that a train could block one of these and slow a response to a fire is a real one, so the firemen have attempted to put their installations in practical places, with this in mind.

The Bayshore Freeway is another problem and here, too, the layout of residential areas and industrial areas hasn't been guided by firefighting considerations.

It's impossible for fire trucks from the East Palo Alto station to get to a fire in Bohannon Industrial Park, for instance, without getting out on Bayshore Freeway and the fact that there are only two traffic interchanges connecting Belle Haven and East Palo Alto with the rest of the district presents the possibility that fire engines called into the area to supplement those of the East Palo Alto station would have considerable backtracking to do to get to a fire.

The fire department's answer to this is continuous training. Every fireman is supposed to know the name and location of every street in the district, so in an emergency he can get to a fire in the shortest possible time.

IN FRENCH

"Voila!" shouted Walter the Weathermouse in his best French accent, as he ran into the office with his reports this week, "Parlez vous . . ."

"STOP!" we shouted back at him. "What's all this Gallic gamboling about?"

"I have run out of English-language puns," admitted the rodent. "If you won't have a 'veila' for a greeting, how about being satisfied with a voilin?"

County Comment:

Lower School District Tax Rates May Be Only Temporary

By FLOYD F. McCUE
Editor and Publisher, Redwood City Star-Advertiser

Now that the school districts have put their spending programs down in official budgets, we can see just for once there may be a slight reduction showing on the total tax rate when bills start coming out in another 60 days. That will be true in some areas, but not in others.

The 5½-cent cut announced by the Sequoia High School District will mean lower bills in Redwood City and Menlo Park, for sure. Elementary school rates here will remain the same, but in Menlo Park they will drop slightly.

San Carlos grade schools will have a rate that more than offsets the high school cut. The Ladera district is going way up and Woodside will have a slight reduction.

So for the most part taxpayers may save a few dollars for a change on school cocts. Coupled with a five-cent county rate drop we actually may be able to see a drop for 1960-61.

This sudden and surprising turn of events undoubtedly will be short lived, however. The union high school district must seek a new and higher permissive tax rate to meet future expenses. Redwood City Elementary School District is in the same fix, so by 1961-62 we may see new all-time high record spending programs.

The high school district was able to reduce its rate this year, thanks to the windfall it received a year ago when the reassessment program went into effect. That it will need more soon is not questioned. Recently in this column we noted that this year's high school budget would be about nine million dollars. Actually it was just under eight — but still a tidy sum to operate six high schools.

The report made by the citizens advisory committee of the high school district recognizes the fast rising costs. It proposes, primarily, two alternatives to cut down the spending: use of the four-quarter plan or double sessions. The recommendations would be submitted to the voters if approved by the entire study committee.

It seems that either plan has about as much chance of getting voter approval as tht proverbial snowball. Parents are sick of having their youngsters struggle through double sessions in grade school and want no part of that system in high school. The four-quarter plan has merit in full utilization of plant facilities, but here again you can expect bitter resentment from not only parents but from teacher groups.

The summer school program now allows a student to make up classwork and get in a few extra courses if he wishes, but there are few families that want to upset vacation schedules by having their youngsters in school.

What is the answer then? We think the cost and classroom shortage could be settled once and for all with one program: Increase the enrollment capacity of ALL district schools. Each time we build a new school costing approximately two millions, the budget must go up about $1¼-million—based on present budget averages. The present enrollment of just under 10,000 is expected to increase to 18,000 by 1970.

Adding classrooms for an additional 1000 students at EACH school would mean that we would have to build only one new school plant by 1970.

Not only would we save terrific amounts in administration costs, but think of the plant upkeep and operation. It would increase only slightly by having more classrooms at present schools. But school officials frown on this plan, wanting to keep each school to 2000.

We argue that the quality has not improved since the schools had 3000 enrollments. This was the result of voters refusing to approve bonds. They just might take the same attitude again on a proposal to increase the permissive tax.

Fire chiefs in the several municipalities are fighting the move instigated by County Manager E. R. Stallings to turn the county's fire fighting duties over to the state. They argue that there is more to it than just saving money, and possibly they're right. Who wants to save the taxpayers money? Well, Manager Stallings says he can do it to the extent of a $150,000 saving each year — and still get first-class protection.

This the fire chiefs question. We wouldn't know but the move to transfer the fire department to the state is not new. The late Supervisor Henry Edmonds tried just such a step but lost out years ago.

Stallings says the saving actually would be more than $150,000 a year. The state would probably lease or purchase the county's present buildings and equipment. The fire department's budget for 1960-61 is $291,381, plus $30,000 in retirement benefits. The state is expected to contribute $102,852 of this total toward forest protection.

The saving by the state would result in at least 2½ cents this year if he can get supervisor approval.

Thirty-eight counties now use the state service and the county manager hopes to get the issue settled once and for all within the next week or two.

25 Years Ago:

State Had Liquor Problems

The files of the Menlo Park Recorder reveal that 25 years ago this week, the following items, here reproduced exactly as first published, were news in the young community:

August 23, 1935:

California liquor law administrators, working under the State Board of Equalization, have seized 10,000 bottles of whiskey, gin, rum, alcohol, cocktails and cordials. They are undetermined just what is to be done with the collection.

According to the law, absconded liquor may either be destroyed or sold at public auction. The liquor in state possession is believed valued at $10,000.

George M. Stout, state liquor control administrator, and the board of equalization have asked Attorney General U. S. Webb whether or not the state has the right to sell the liquor.

The bottles were seized because liquor establishments possessing them were unlicensed and because dealers failed to mark their bottles with the state tax stamp required after July 1.

10 Years Ago:

Disaster Unit Formed Here

August 17, 1950:

The Menlo Park Civilian Defense Council met for an organizational meeting and has undertaken a check of vital phases of the local civil defense setup, according to City Manager C. L. Longson.

The council is checking the space and facilities available in the area for housing purposes and also the availability of cots and beds.

They are also checking the lists of inactive nurses in the locality, who would be available for instruction purposes, and they are looking into the possibility of obtaining a radio transmitter which would be used in th eevent that the police department transmitter failed.

Federal plans are being issued through the state government and all cities will follow a uniform policy.

Sequoia District Clarifies Budget Figures

Sequoia High School District business management officials this week clarified some of the figures appearing in a recent number of the "County Comment" column appearing in this paper.

They pointed out that although the district's total budget is $7,745,000, a sum of $750,000 of this being held in reserve, so the actual operating budget would be in the neighborhood of $7,000,000.

Also, they pointed out, the tax rate charged to district residents, if the district annexes to the San Mateo College District will not rise appreciably.

Although the residents of the high school district are not now paying a tax to the college agency, they are paying a tuition charge which is substantially the same as the tax rate. The maximum rise, according to Sequoia District business officials, would be nine cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Fair Building Design Gets Large Notice

San Mateo County Fair and Floral Fiesta's new Industry building, completed this year, is drawing notice from architects all over the country because of its unique design features.

Already, some six articles have been written for professional magazines, calling attention to construction techniques used in the structure, which was designed by Menlo Park architects Janssen, Daseking and Keller.

Most unique feature of the construction was casting, on the ground, of 22 100-foot-long concrete vaults which make up the roof of the structure. Hoisted into place after being cast on the ground, the 40-foot members cover the 40,000 square feet of floor space of the new building.

Casting on the ground and later lifting into place is more economical than casting such arched-type roof members in place, according to fair officials.

The professional magazines for which descriptions of the process have been written include "Western Construction," "Western Architect and Engineer," "Engineering News-Record," "This Earth" and "Architectural Record."

Some 160,000 persons — the largest number ever to attend a Fair and Floral Fiesta in this county — trooped through the building to admire the displays assembled from a wide variety of industries from all parts of the county.

The shells were cast in forms which were built on the Fiesta grounds, and were erected by the Independent Iron Works of Oakland.

W. A. Moroney Construction Co. of Burlingame was the general contractor.

Elmer Riddle, Mountain View, was the driver of the other auto involved.

'Blow-out' Caused It:

Five Injured in Sand Hill Road Auto Accident

A tire blowout which a woman driver mistook for an exploding shotgun shell last week was blamed for injuries to herself and four children. One of the youngsters was critically hurt.

Highway patrolman Vince Bianchini said all five were hurled out of the convertible car when it flipped over after climbing an earth embankment.

The accident happened at 3:30 p.m. last Thursday on Sand Hill road, a half-mile east of Whiskey Hill road.

Bianchini said the car, driven by Mrs. Rita Milena D'Elia, 23, of 98 Pereta drive, Daly City, was eastbound.

The left rear tire blew out, the officer speculated, and the sound was mistaken by Mrs. D'Elia for the explosion of a shotgun shell in the trunk of the car.

The driver, Bianchini said, evidently panicked and pressed the accelerator.

The car sped out of control, bounced off a bank on the south side of the road, careened back across the road, skidded 135 feet through a field, slewed across the road again and climbed an embankment, throwing its occupants out.

By this time, the officer said, the accelerator was stuck and the faulty tire had been torn to shreds, while the spinning wheel had gouged a six-inch hole in the roadway.

Heat of the auto's exhaust burned a hole in the pavement and later started a small grass fire which was extinguished by the Woodside fire department.

Most seriously injured was Lucy Passetti, 13, of 2175 Dumbarton avenue in East Palo Alto, a family friend. Hospital attendants said she suffered a severe injury. Her condition, described as poor at first, later improved.

Also admitted to the hospital were Mary Ann Zapponi, 14, 303 Garden street, in East Palo Alto, who suffered a back injury and Mrs. D'Elia's daughter, Rosalie, 3, who sustained multiple abrasions.

The Recs' Gary Geegan . . .
. . . hustled around third base on Jack Foley's single and made it home on an outfield error for the third Menlo run against San Carlos at Flood Park Sunday. That made it 4-3 San Carlos, but the Recs collected four more after Geegan's scoring trot and won it 7-4. No Spectators Allowed for Saturday's Game:

Recs to Play 5 in 3 Days

The Menlo Park Recs, winners in seven of their last eight games and rapidly developing into the best baseball team ever to represent the city, undertake a tortuous five games in three days this weekend, culminating with a vital Bayshore League contest Sunday against the leading Burlingame Red Sox.

The Recs start off their big weekend tonight with a 6 o'clock contest against the San Carlos Cardinals at Burgess Field.

Saturday, they play a doubleheader at Soledad prison, south of Salinas. Gametimes there are 9 a.m. and 1:15 p.m., but no spectators are allowed.

Sunday, the Recs return to Flood Park to play a doubleheader against the Red Sox. The first game starts at 12 noon.

Only the first game will count in league standings. The second will be seven innings and will follow the first by one-half hour.

Menlo and Burlingame were scheduled to play last Sunday but the game had to be postponed because Burlingame was still participating in the state semi-pro tourney at San Rafael. The Red Sox have since been eliminated, however.

Instead the Recs played the highly regarded San Carlos Merchants in a non-leaguer at Flood and scored an exciting 7-4 triumph in a see-saw contest.

Spinner Johnston and Jack Foley both hit two-run home runs off reliever Fred Kara in the sixth and seventh innings to turn the tide.

San Carlos had gone ahead 2-0 in the first but the Recs tied the score in the same frame. San Carlos starter Art Amaya, former Pacific Coast League hurler, then left the game, complaining of a sore arm.

Kara, who a month ago was playing at Wenatchee, Wash. in the Class B Northwest League, blanked the Recs with his wicked curve ball until the fifth. Meanwhile the Merchants were taking a 4-2 lead.

The Recs scored one run in the fifth and then took the lead on Johnston's blast in the sixth.

In reverse of his usual style, Rec hurler Ted Tollner got stronger as he went. After giving up three runs and three hits the first two frames, he scattered six hits and allowed just one run the remaining seven. He wound up with 10 strikeouts.

Shortstop Gary Geagan scored three Recs' runs and drove in a fourth.

This week's pitchers for the Recs will probably be Bob Bitticks tonight, Bob Wolger and Rudy Steinbruck Saturday and Tollner and Dick Sanchez Sunday.

Bill Brodie, Lyman Ashley and Eddie Hoffacker will be used in relief where necessary.

Looking Better All the Time:

M-A Jr. Wightman Cuppers Close Out Their Best Year Yet

The Menlo-Atherton Junior Wightman Cup tennis team closed out its season Saturday by dropping a nip-and-tuck 5-4 struggle to the Peninsula Club of San Mateo. The result sewed up the championship of the Northern California Tennis Association's top-flight Division I league for the Peninsula girls, though they have one more match scheduled against Sacramento.

Menlo-Atherton snared two singles and two doubles set-to's, to bring its individual match record to 36 wins, 27 losses. Though the local racketeers defeated Berkeley 5-4, they wound up behind Berkeley and San Francisco because they failed to trounce weaker teams in the circuit as soundly.

The 1960 season was far and away the best in M-A Wightman Cup history. It showed great improvement over last year when a 38 won, 43 lost, fifth-place record landed M-A in the first division for the first time.

Though the Junior Wightman Cuppers fielded only three regular tournament performers, they had to be considered an all-star, homegrown aggregation that could give and take with the best of them.

Personnel consisted of the leading girl player from Menlo-Atherton, Carlmont, Palo Alto high schools, four college co-eds, and 12-year-old Kathy Doyle of Redwood City, the outstanding tournament player of her age living on the Peninsula. Four straight victories at the beginning of the season, including two upsets, garnered the M-A group considerable attention from the San Francisco press.

Saturday's results:

Singles: Bernice Baker (P) def. Judi Hansen (M-A) 6-3, 6-0; Mary Ann Garlick (P) def. Merrily Gross (M-A) 6-4, 7-5; Valerie Small (P) def. Jamie De Veuve (M-A) 6-3, 6-0; Dorothy Cathcart (M-A) def. Martha Stevens (P) 6-1, 6-3; Mary Ann Kellogg (P) def. Holly Millar (M-A) 6-0, 6-2; Kathy Doyle (M-A) def. Sheila Zollar (P) 6-1, 7-5.

Doubles: Baker-Small (P) def. Hansen-Gross (M-A) 6-0, 6-1; De Veuve-Cathcart (M-A) def. Garlick-Stevens (P) 6-8, 6-4, 7-5; Millar-Doyle (M-A) def. Karen Kromhout-Nancy Feldstein (P) 6-4, 6-2.

Paly on Top When A's Call It Quits

Suffering a letdown after pulling off a startling upset over Palo Alto, Menlo-Atherton No. 1 ended the Menlo Park Recreation Department Class A summer basketball season last week by dropping a 34-30 decision to Cubberley.

Menlo-Atherton 2 wound up their activities on a happier note, trouncing tail-ender Woodside 42-35 in their final A league appearance.

Other game results last Wednesday: Champion Palo Alto topped second-place Ravenswood 50-43 in what was a tight game up until the final minutes and Carlmont clipped St. Francis 33-29.

Although Cubberley had a horrible two-point first quarter, M-A 1 couldn't hold them off. The locals had an 8-2 lead at the quarter but it disppeared quickly by halftime when Cubberley pulled into a 12-12 tie.

In the second half, Cubberley's Don Castle began hitting and racked up 14 of his 19 points to send the South Palo Altans into the lead to stay.

Mike Quirk and Kent Hadden both tallied nine for Menlo-Atherton.

In M-A 2's victory over Woodside, Frank Sullivan led the way with 16 points. Team 2 rolled up a substantial halftime edge, but Woodside kept chipping away to close in on the winners in the second half. They couldn't make it, however, lacking the height and rebounding power of M-A.

Dick Burke tanked 15 for Woodside, mostly on outside shots, with Mike Hall adding seven and John Morton scoring six. Aiding Sullivan in the Team 2 attack was Walker Williams with nine and Jim Cheatham with six.

Intramural football games ae now being played at the Belle Haven Park every afternoon at 1 p.m.

The Final AA Tabulations

Showing up even stronger than anticipated, the Rollins Reds are the official 1960 champs of the Menlo Park Recreation Department's Class AA summer basketball league.

One of the reasons was big Fred LaCour, former USF cage great, who topped the individual scorers with a sizzling 14.9 points average per game. LaCour played only 12 of the Reds' 14 games or he might also have been the total point leader. The K-Dets' Duane Asplund took that honor with 188 for 14 games. LaCour had 179. Ross Stores' Tom Meschery had an 18.6 per game average, but played only six.

The Reds placed three among the top ten scorers. Stanford's John Arrillaga came in fourth with a 12.7 average in 12 games and Cal's Larry Friend placed ninth with 10.6 in 13 contests.

Likewise for the A's

Palo Alto's once-beaten Vikings are the champions of the Menlo Park Recreation Department's Class A basketball League for the second year running, rolling up a 13-1 record.

And Bob Strohecker and Kent Hinckley of Paly dominated the scoring leadership about as strongly as their team dominated the league.

Strohecker's 16-point average for first place in the scoring parade was followed by the 14.3 average posted by Hinckley. Mike Quirk of Menlo-Atherton Team I was third with 13.5 and George Raybon of Ravenswood fourth with 12.7.

Cage Loop Closes

Give some big college boys a cramped basketball court to play on and you'd better move the spectator seats back about 10 paces, because the fireworks and elbows really fly.

Burgess Gym was the location in point Tuesday night when the Menlo Park Recreation Department's Class AA summer basketball league All-Stars knocked off newly-crowned league champion Rollins Realty Reds by an astronomical 88-82 count.

The game was switched from Menlo-Atherton gym, the scene of all the league action, because of repairs now going on, and the short court at Burgess seemed to be just the thing for jacking up score totals.

The Reds' lanky Fred LaCour, the ex-USF star, went wild after a shaky start and wound up leading scorers with 29 points, 16 in the second half. Teammate John Arrillaga, from Stanford, was next with 17.

The All-Stars, working the ball in well and taking good advantage of a slight height advantage, spread their scoring out a little more. St. Mary's ace Tom Meschery topped the stars with 17, with San Jose State's Joe Braun and California's Duane Asplund each sinking 16. USF's John Galton got 15.

There always seemed to be one of the All-Stars who was in the middle of a hot streak. Braun netted 10 points on five buckets in the first quarter to power them to a 20-11 lead going into the second period. Galton got nine and Asplund eight to offset the now-hot LaCour's 11 for a 46-37 halftime margin for the stars.

Despite Meschery's 13 markers in the second half, it was the Reds who were on the move after the intermission. With LaCour apparently unstoppable and their floor game running smoothly, the Reds inched up from a monstrous 17-point deficit early in the third period until they were behind only 77-76 with four minutes left.

Some sharp layins by Meschery and Galton kept the stars out front, however, and the Reds never threatened that closely again.

LaCour, always accurate at the foul line, sank 11 of 12 attempts. Despite the cramped quarters and the speed of college basketball, nobody fouled out, although several were tiptoeing on eggs late in the going.

AA Regular Season Closes

The K-Dets sealed up second place in the curtain ring-down of Menlo Park Recreation Department's Class AA summer basketball league action last Thursday, lambasting the Rollins Whites 52-36.

In the only other tilt of the night, Freeman Pavers came out strong in the second half to down the Rollins Blues 61-48.

Phil Kelly paced the K-Dets with 22 points, with Duane Asplund and Bud Bowling each netting 12. John Galton led the losers with 10.

MP Rec Netters Clobber Redwood

A mixed team of Menlo Park Recreation Department summer tennis students established themselves as quite a good group indeed Tuesday by soundly thumping a Redwood City recreation tennis team 9-2 at Willow-Oaks Park.

The issue was never in doubt after the early sets, as the Menlos swept the girls' singles and dropped close ones only in the boys' singles and mixed doubles.

Machine-Age Helps Low Bat Averages

No Sweat or Strain . . .
. . . is involved in batting practice when Menlo Park baseball coach Frank Bettencourt's electrically-driven pitching machine is on the job. Just roll 29 baseballs down the feed and the mechanical flinger does the rest. That's Menlo Park Recreation Department playground director Dave Peasley supervising proceedings from the Burgess Park diamond mound in a recent Farm League team practice. The boys like the machine when they get used to it and find it really isn't as wild as some of their own ballplaying ilk.
—Recorder photo

One of the best solutions a great many young local baseball aspirants have found for curing their batting troubles is a nifty little device that has become standard equipment with Frank Bettencourt-coached teams.

There are pitching machines to be found at lots of practice sessions, varying in type and size. The Menlo-Atherton Little League has one built especially for Little Leaguer youngsters. Many professional clubs make use of them.

But just what are the advantages of a pitching machine for a batter — and his teammates? Bettencourt can supply the answers with game batting statistics.

His Calso club in the Menlo Park Babe Ruth League this year got 200 base hits in 21 ball games — almost 10 hits per game. Frank attributes a full 50 per cent of this prodigious output to skills his players developed batting against the machine.

It'll throw a ball every seven seconds and never gets tired, as batting practice pitchers do. It doesn't have wild streaks either. The ball comes over the plate every time. Its speed can be adjusted by tightening the coil release spring for fast balls and loosening it for slow balls. Height of the pitches can be controlled, too.

But an easier way of coping with a batter's weakness — the spot or spots over the plate he has trouble in reaching or hitting — is simply to move a portable plate around under the strike zone.

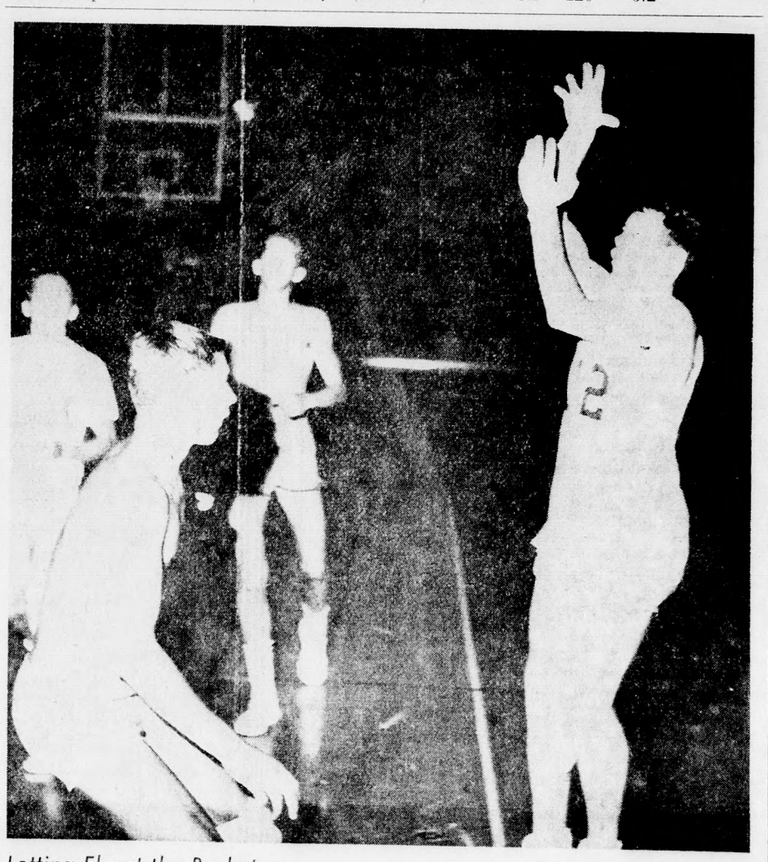

This way a hitter having trouble with fast balls works with the plate moved in toward the machine. If inside pitches are his trouble, the plate is moved away from him, so that the machine throws them all in over at the inside, and so it goes.

The machine's accuracy suffers if the balls aren't in good shape, literally. A ball with torn seams or one that's slightly out of round will break like a screwball sometimes, but it's still good practice. Frank's $350 gadget is built for developing a batting eye. It'll throw a ball as fast as 90 per cent of pitchers can throw, so it accomplishes its purpose.

Bettencourt pointed out, however that with all its advantages, the machine won't make a good hitter out of a poor one. There's a definite correlation between the batter who hits the machine well and the one who gets the base hits in a game. They're usually the same persons.

A mediocre hitter can improve with the extra practice he gets against the mechanical flinger, but the one who strikes out a lot in practice will follow suit with live competition.

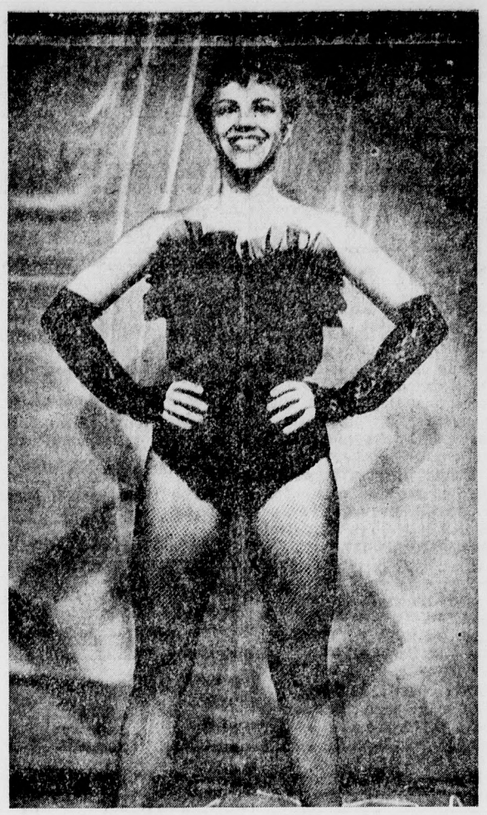

Just the same, the youngsters like the machine because it gives them more practice and there's no danger of getting in the way of a pitch. It helps the older players, too. The Menlo Park Recs semipro club has been using in and have found it a boon to their hitting.

Letting Fly at the Bucket . . .
. . . last week, Woodside's John Morton (right) did what he could to help his club try to overtake Menlo-Atherton No. 2, but the Woodsiders went down 42-35 anyway. This was the final Class A summer recreation basketball league tilt for the high school varsitymen.

Local Girl Comes Home:

Elizabeth Mosher in Concert

A concert of local interest is announced by Elizabeth Mosher, lyric soprano, for Tuesday, August 23, at the Palo Alto Community Center, at 8:30 p.m.

Miss Mosher, once a local resident, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Mosher, 1175 Johnson street. She attended Pomona College for two years and graduated from the University of Southern California in 1957 cum laude and received her master of music degree in 1953. There she was elected to Pi Kappa Lambda, a member of Mu Phi Epsilon, and Alpha Omicron Pi.

Awarded a Fulbright Scholarship in voice for Germany, she has spent the past two year there studying with the famous German colortura soprano, Erna Berger. Home just for the summer months, Elizabeth will return to Europe September 3 to fulfill concert and opera obligations.

She has appeared in numerous concerts and operas both here and in northern Germany, where she received quite favorable press reviews. Her opera performances include such standards at Pamina, Constanze, Elisabeth (Don Carlos), Antonia, Marguerite, Violetta, Agathe and Countess.

Her program will include songs and arias from Handel, Brahms, Wolf, Bellini, Bernstein ,and American folk songs. Austin Mosher, her father, will accompany her. Tickets are aavilable at Melody Lane Music Shop, University avenue, Palo Alto.

Opera Co. Trims 'Winter Season'

The roster of singers for the Fifth Anniversary season of the Peninsula Artists and Opera Company has been announced by general director Eugene Lawrence.

Unlike last year, when the opera programs were spread out over several months, this year will be a real Winter Season, lasting just two months, from December to February.

"Hansel and Gretel" will be the first opera, to be presented in Palo Alto and Dec. 17 and 18, to be followed by "Rigoletto" and Jan. 21; "Don Pasquale" on Feb. 4 and "La Traviata" on Feb. 18. On Feb. 21, the Company will present Mozart's ' 'Magic Flute" in Berkeley for the East Bay Opera Guild, in addition to several out-of-town engagements between December and February.

New singers for the coming season include sopranos Marion Flaherty, Vasiliki Husmus, Athena Knyisdos, Pepi Nenova, Patricia Romines, Virginia Starr; mezzo sopranos Tina Baird, Alicia Greeley and Jacqueline Langee; tenors Fred Caperello, Victor Hubbard, Nerino Negri; baritones Joseph Ciampi, Donald Drain, Angelo Laspina, Robert Medsen, Carpoll Nickels; bassos David Giosso and Eric Lysell.

Among those already heard during the last season are sopranos Yvonne Cadwellader, Nancy Linden, Margaret Norcross, Dorothy Nutto, and Edith Zitelli; mezzo sopranos Mary Anderson, Ingeborg France, Margaret Magoon and Donna Petersen; tenors Thomas Caperello and Willis Frost; baritones Winther Andersen, John Di Francesco, Edwin Dunning and Colin Harvey.

Returning after one year absence from the Palo Alto performances are soprano Josephine Barbano and tenor Ante Soljanich, who will sing in "L Traviata" the roles of Violetta and Alfredo Germont, respectively. Both artists were in the original cast when the Campany presented "La Traviata" in operalougue form, the first operatic performance during 1957-58. Last season, Miss Barbano and Mr. Soljanich performed those parts in Santa Cruz.

Also of interest may be the return of tenor Frederic Loadwick after an absence of three seasons. Loadwick will participate in "On Wenlock Edge," Song Cycle for tenor, string quartet and pianoforte by Vaughn Williams on Nov. 19, the opening chamber music program of the Company's regular series.

Those who are not yet on the mailing list but wish to receive the next brochure program, now being printed, may send a letter or postcard with name and address to P.O. Box 227, Palo Alto, or call the Company office at DA 4-1924, and the brochure will be mailed as soon as it comes off the press.

TUB COLOR

August is a good month to give your patio or deck a lift by adding a tub or two of color. You'd be surprised to find how little it takes to make a big difference. A check with your local nurseryman will turn up blooming plants such as hydrangeas and chrysanthemums that need only a suitable container to make their beauty complete. A hanging fuchsia can be bought—basket and all

In the Garden:

Every Garden Needs a Plan—Either Do-It-Yourself or Expert

It should be the first job of any would-be gardener to develop an over-all plan for his garden. Whether he uses his own creative genius for this, calls in an expert, or picks his plan out of a home and garden magazine, makes no difference. The important thing is to have the plan.

Once he has accepted this fact of garden life, the homeowner has half the battle won. If he is starting from scratch, he may proceed at once. If he is starting with an already established garden, he must first consider the often painful possibility that he will have to uproot shrubbery in wholesale fashion to achieve his ultimate idea of the perfect garden.

Whether starting from scratch or from the results of someone else's mis-planning, you will want to make what use of established trees and shrubs you can. A grown tree—especially a slow growing specimen such as oak—is an asset that should be preserved, even at the cost of somewhat altering your plan to accommodate it.

Put your plan on paper. This is a must. In your drawing, locate the house and existing trees on the lot, then rough in your garden needs. Start with the front approach and give emphasis to the ease with which traffic flows into the house and around it to the back yard.

Then consider a service area —A place that can be closed off from the rest of the garden to hide the clutter of garbage cans, clotheslines, tools, etc. This should preferably be as close to the back entrance as possible.

Finally, consider your outdoor living area and its access to the house. Don't skimp here. We'd a whole lot rather see an over - size living area in an under-size garden than vice-versa. Once you are this far, the rest is easy. Just take your plan to the local nurseryman and let him help you map out the planting areas and plan what material should go in them. Unless you are an old hand at the game, he can save you a lot of future headaches.

Comedia's 'Scarecrow' Starts Monday

"The Scarecrow" by Percy MacKaye is the next play in Comedia Repertory Company's Monday night series, plays of quality and high entertainment value which are presented free of charge. The play was written in 1906 and is a tragi-comedy set in Massachusetts in the 17th century. It opens on September 5.

The director is Eric Silins, who will also take the part of Lord Ravensbane. He is presently directing and acting in "The Curmudgeon' and acting in "La Ronde."

Others in the cast are James Wolf as Justice Gilead Merton; Lee Steele as Goody Rickby; Colin Higgins as Dickon; Brigita Silins as Rachael Merton; Lorraine Huelsenkamp as Mistress Cynthia Merton; Steve Hudner as Richard Talbot; Alison Rose as Amelia Reddington; Don Tabor as Captain Bugby; Dick Anton as Minister Dodge; and Ron Coxon as Micah. All of the above have appeared in previous Comedia productions.

"The Scarecrow" is concerned with witchcraft and the interplay of the Devil (Dickon) and a very human witch (Goody Rickby), and a scarecrow who masquerades as a man in order to win the heart of Judge Merton's daughter. He falls in love with the girl but realizes he can never marry her, for he is only the creation of the Devil and Goody. But having felt the pleasure of love, he can no longer live as the scarecrow-man, so he dies.

The play is, in part, a satire on a society that accepts false ideals and values in order to save face.

DISBUDDING

Gardeners who grow chrysanthemums and dahlias are annually faced with the question: To disbud or not to disbud? We don't think there's room for doubt here. If you would have show blooms you have to disbud — severely. Even where show blooms are not your wish, moderate disbudding will improve the quality

ROSE ATTENTION

Rosarians would do well to give their roses some added attention this month if they would have good bloom into fall. Cut out weak growth and shorten growth that has already bloomed. Weed and improve basins around plants, digging in well rotted manure and a handful of commercial fertilizer per plant

Locals Win Big at Floral Fiesta

By SUE ROBERTS

Menlo Park and Atherton flower growers have been clipping their prize blooms for the San Mateo County Fair and Floral Fiesta of late, and many of the judges have been "clipping" red, blue and white prize ribbons to the entries.

One of Menlo's growers and consistent winners at the fair is Charles M. Nunn of 1525 Laurel place. His father, George Nunn, was one of the city's pioneer flower growers. After deciding that he would have nothing to do with the world of florticulture, Charles Nunn reverted to his true form and the precedent which had been set for him.

In the recent fair competition, Nunn won three firsts and a second with his dahlias, a second in cannas, three firsts and a third in fuchsias, a first and second in geraniums, second and third in hydrangeas, two firsts in petunias, two firsts in marconi daisies, a second in zinnias and two firsts, a second and third in roses.

Nunn has been exhibiting his flowers since 1955. A member of the Peninsula Rose Society Nunn is also a judge for the Dahlia Society and a past president of the Santa Clara Valley banch of the American Fuchsia Society.

He has been growing his fuchsias since 1939, and at present has them attractively arranged in both ground and hanging containers, giving a decked bower effect to his airy garden shelter.

Many growers prepare their plants so that the fullest blooms will appear in time for the fair and floral exhibits. Nunn feels that the most important function of a garden is to give color to the landscaping. He therefore schedules his fuchsias to bloom when nothing else is growing well in the garden.

His enormous dahlias lend vibrant color to the front portion of his yard which borders on the roadway. Judges at the recent fiesta concluded that his Atomic Yellow and Pride of Holland varieties were among the top blooms they had seen this year.

Another very consistent Menlo Park prize winner at the fair was Harvey Brown of 2111 Oakdale avenue. Roses are his main field, in which he won three firsts and two seconds. He also won seconds in clematis, cosmos and annuals and a third in fuchsias.

One of the Reasons . . .

. . . why Charles M. Nunn of 1525 Laurel place in Menlo Park was one of the consistent floral winners in this year's San Mateo County Fair and Floral Fiesta is this huge, healthy dahlia Nunn is holding in his garden. Nunn took no less than 13 first places and several seconds and thirds, three of the top places with his dahlias.

A section of Brown's growing space is taken up with test plants which he and other members of the Peninsula Rose Society grow to test the blooming qualities of new roses before they are recommended to the public.

Duet, a lustrous pink rose, is one of the new ones which Brown has found to be a good addition to his garden color. Another is Saraband, a brilliant red-orange bloom which grows well and is very free of mildew. Fire King, also an orangy-red, at first seems to resemble a pom-pon. As it opens out, its darkly tipped petals give a frame-like effect to the bloom. This rose needs heat and does not grow well in foggy areas.

Tanya, a flambouyant combination of yellow and subdued orange is an excellent new grower, but it needs attention to prevent it from mildewing.

One of Brown's favorites is Hawaii, which has a vibrant orange floret with a high pointed center. This rose is a slow starter, but once it establishes itself it grows hardily. All of these roses are new varieties which have been tested during the past year.

Other winners in the amateur floriculture division from this area are the Garden Club of Menlo Park, second in room arrangements; Menlo Park Women's Club, a third in room arrangements; Mrs. Joseph Gary of Atherton with a second place award titled Moonlight and Posies; Mrs. Frederick M. Sherman of Atherton with a third place winner in Summer Breezes; Dorothy P. Black of Atherton with a first in Wealth of Green and a third in Crown Jewel; Mrs. Philip Fitzgerald of Atherton with a third place named Outgoing; Elizabeth L. Morgan of Menlo Park with a first in Desert Song and a third in Ruffles, and Mrs. P. D.Smith of Menlo Park with a first in These United States and a third in Miniatures.

Gwladys Mills of Woodside won a first with her only entry, My Kitchen Window. Mrs. Don Patterson of Atherton took a second with her contribution of Homestead, as did Aithea K. Gardiner of Menlo Park with Desert Song.

Mrs. Thomas F. Cuff of Menlo Park won a first with Nostalgia and a third in the flowering plant classification. Kai Freitag of Woodside took first in fern and foliage plants and thirds in carnations and roses.

John Paul Dusel Jr. of Atherton won a first with his entry of berberas. The Junior Gardeners of Menlo Park came in second with their special garden. Nancy McFarland of Menlo Park won a fourth place in a special event classification and Kathryn Gardiner of Menlo Park took a second in miniatures and a third in unusual plants.

Gardeners' Complaints 'For the Birds'

You find gardeners in every neighborhood who complain about birds. And to many a man, they always cite the visible damage which some few of our feathered friends have wrought from time to time.

We'd like to dissent from this viewpoint, and we're sure a majority of gardeners will join us. You don't measure a book by its cover, and you shouldn't measure a bird by the occasional buds or berries he eats. There is actually a great deal of benefit to be derived from providing a sanctuary for birds.

If you are like most of us, you enjoy the constant comings and goings of birds. You enjoy their songs and take real pleasure in recognizing a familiar call or in identifying a newcomer to the garden.

These you recognize as very real assets, but there are even more tangible benefits to be considered. Namely, as one nurseryman told us, a major part of any bird's activity in the garden consists of grubbing about for insects and their various larvae or in feasting on seeds of various plants, including weeds.

If you would encourage birds in your garden, then, consider the things that they like — trees and thickets or shrubs, or a tangle of rampant growing vines where they can seek refuge from predators and find shelter to nest. Such prolific seed annuals as marigold, gaillardia, zinnia, forget-me-not and sunflower are also attractions. And berried shrubs such as pyracantha seem sometimes irresistible (though, strangely, birds will completely ignore the berries in one garden and eat them in another). Flowering quinces are thorny enough and tangled enough to make a good refuge, and they are wonderful to have in the garden, too.

Check with your nurseryman about other ways to attract birds. And don't overlook the possibility of a bird bath or bird house. Not all birds will nest in bird houses, but there isn't a one that won't go for the bath.

GARDENER'S CHECKLIST

1. Water, water everywhere is the gardeners motto for August. Be sure to give plants a good soaking, not just a sprinkle.
2. Any lawn looks better if neatly trimmed around the edges. Edgers make the job easy.

Chamberlin Tools Alfy to Win at Cotati

He averaged more than 60 mph for 22 laps on the twisting 2.1-mile asphalt course in sports car races sponsored by the Sports Car Club of America.

Chamberlin, who placed only third in class during the Saturday preliminary races, drove a red Alfa Romeo Spyder.

Twenty-eight cars finished the race. Chamberlin, a first-time novice driver, is expected to participate in a crippled children's benefit race next month at Cotati.

CIRCUS CLUB WINS

Menlo Circus Club overwhelmed Green Hills Country Club 224-66 in a Peninsula Interclub Swim League meet this last weekend. Double winners for Menlo were Chris Lussier, Karl Englert, Tom Leep, Eden Patterson, Steve Lussier, Kathy Nichols, Melba Englert and Joe Englert.

Archery Golf . . .

. . . is one of the various types of archery skills being taught this summer in Menlo Park Recreation Department's archery classes. These youngsters are starting about 200 yards from a cluster of balloons. Their next shot will be from where their first arrows landed. Hitting a balloon in three tries is considered quite good for a young bowman. Left to right: instructor Phyllis Watson, David Sciarini, Ron Parrish, Dean Westly, Pat Matthews.

Booths, Barkers, Prizes:

Save Your Pennies—Annual 'Penny Carnival' Is Coming Up

It's Penny Carnival time again for Menlo Park youngsters and adults alike, next Thursday evening in Burgess Gym.

Judging from the success of the annual affair last year, it'll probably pack 'em in again this time, with prizes, entertainment and competition among the barkers.

Youngsters of Menlo Park Recreation Department's summer playground programs are putting this thing on and are hard at it this week with plans for their booths. Each playground will have one or two gaily decorated booths and all will offer some kind of game with prize awards to winners.

There won't be anything complicated or expensive. The booths will offer the penny pitch, basketball bounce, tennis ball toss, sponge throw (at a live target), fish pond, make-up booth, water fall, ping pong ball toss, bowling, beanbag toss and ring toss.

Participating playgrounds are Nealon Park, Hillview School, Oak Knoll School, Willow-Oaks Park, Las Lomitas School, Belle Haven Park, Flood School and O'Connor School.

Hours will be from 6-9 p.m. Tickets are purchased at the door for one cent each, entitling the buyer to a crack at any booth in the gym, one try per ticket. Various trinkets and plastic toys will be awarded as prizes to winners.

Also scheduled for the evening is a melodramatic skit, still in the works, which will be the carnival's "sideshow," as it were.

Prizes also will be awarded to the most colorful and convincing barkers.

Junior Leaders Hold Swimfest

Junior leaders of the Ravenswood Recreation and Park District enjoyed an evening of swimming, water relays and refreshments Wednesday, August 10.

Representing Brentwood playground were Cheryl Sampson, Daniel Sampson, Harold Giordano, Judy Matteson, Jim McCauley, Donald Munday, Taulese Sampson, Robert Butler and Linda Taylor.

From Farrell Park came Kathleen Dye, Marilyn Dye, Ricky Bodene, Diane Ahern and Muriel Kendall.

Junior leaders from the Recreation Center gymnasium included Karen Wallace, Carol Liening, Kathy McGill, Johanna Euley, Magdelina Euley, Janet Bradlock, Gail Bradlock, and Linda Duran. Kavanaugh School was represented by Ken Semon.

MELONS

Watermelon, watermelon, watermelon, and kids, kids, kids!

What better combination could be found on a summer day?

The proceeds from the recent Penny Carnival have been spent on a whole ton of watermelon. Melons will arrive at Kavanaugh school playground at 2 p.m., Farrell Park at 2:15, Brentwood at 2:35 and the recreation center at 3.

Local Baptists To Compete in PBAA Bowling

The Peninsula Baptist Athletic Association will open its 11th year of bowling competition on September 10 with three eight team leagues.

One league will bowl in each of the following cities—San Mateo, Millbrae and Redwood City.

Teams from Linda Mar, Pacifica, San Bruno, Millbrae, Burlingame, San Mateo, Belmont, San Carlos, Redwood City, Atherton Hills, Menlo Park and Palo Alto are entered in the league.

Chuck Adams of Burlingame and Curtis Lindberg of Atherton Hills are in charge of the association's league members.

SWIMMERS SHINE

Menlo Park's Dick Roth, swimming for the Menlo Country Club, established a national age group record in the 12-and-under boys breaststroke in AAU competition at Fresno over the weekend. Country Club teammate Bob Plate of Woodside also did very well at this meet, reports said.

Lutheran Church:

Shirley Reynolds Is Married In Los Gatos

Shirley Joe Reynolds, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Reynolds of Menlo Park, became the bride of William Eugene Champlin in an afternoon ceremony conducted at the Lutheran Church in Los Gatos.

William is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Champlin of Saratoga.

APPLIQUED GOWN

Escorted down the aisle on her father's arm, Shirley wore a gown of peau de soie with appliques of Chantilly lace on the bodice and two side panels. Seed pearls were embroidered into the lace of the bodice and the skirt fell into a graceful chapel train. The bride's veil was fingertip-length topped by a crown of pearls. Shirley carried a Job's Bible from which phalaenopsis orchids were suspended in a cascade arrangement.

Acting as matron of honor was Shirley's sister, Mrs. Richard Furr (Patricia Reynolds). Her gown was in orchid taffeta as was her matching headpiece.

BEST MAN

Richard Furr, the bride's brother-in-law, was best man for William.

Seating the wedding guests was Paul Hoefer of Redwood City and Don Smith of Menlo Park. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend William Reddeker in a church banked with chrysanthemums, gladiolus and stock.

Scene for the reception was the church hall which had been decorated with white stock and white candles.

Mrs. Reynolds greeted her 75 guests in a gown of beige lace over satin with which she wore matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother chose a blue silk organza dress with which she wore white accessories.

As Shirley and William left for their Lake Tahoe honeymoon, Shirley wore a frock of pale green shantung set off with white accessories.

Among wedding and reception guests were Mrs. Frank Wagner of Oakland, an aunt of the bridegroom's, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mendell of Aptos.

Shirley is a graduate of Menlo-Atherton High School, class of 1959. William served for four years in the U.S. Navy after graduating from San Bernardino High School.

All-Day Affair:

Anticipation High For Tally-Ho Fete

Benefit Offers Variety

The Tally-Ho of the August Moon Party and Horse Show, set for this Saturday, Aug. 20, at the Menlo Circus Club in Atherton, will offer a great variety of diversion and excitement for all ages throughout the day and evening. The annual event is sponsored by the Woodside - Atherton Junior Auxiliary to the Stanford Convalescent Home.

The day will get off to an early start with the first of the now famous horse shows scheduled for 8:30 a.m., followed by the afternoon show at 1:30 p.m. Additional activities during the day include a free Walt Disney movie, a merry-go-round, and rides on the authentic Roos-Atkins cable car.

FASHION SHOW

As the sun goes down guests will enjoy a party with all the aura and color of the Orient. They'll have refreshments and see a fashion show of gowns from both the East and the West in a setting of colorful hanging lanterns, Tori gates and Yaketori carts.

The evening horse show, at 8 p.m., will be followed at 11 p.m. by an auction of the actual party decorations along with a great assortment of additional materials especially imported for the occasion. Well-known actor and Bay Area personality, Ben Alexander, will serve as auctioneer.

Throughout the evening there will be numerous games of skill for the guests' enjoyment as well as dancing to the music of Ray Hackett's Orchestra. Also, the Modern Arts Trio will be on hand for a special performance.

Interesting highlight of the event's fashion show will be the display of the Dynasty collection of ceremonial robes from San Francisco's City of Shanghai. Robes will be modeled by "Miss Chinatown," Carol Eng, and by Lorraine Dong, Beverly Tang and Helen Lew. Guests will also enjoy the western-world appeal of gowns by I. Magnin & Co., modeled as "top fashions for fall" by members of the auxiliary.

The public is cordially invited to attend both the horse shows and the party. Tickets will be availabel throughout the day and evening at the Menlo Circus Club gates. Admission for each daytime horse show is $2.50, with children under 12, $1. All tickets for the evening horse show are priced at $2.50 or $5 for both the party and the evening show. Proceeds will go for the benefit of the children at the Stanford Convalescent Home.

Decorations Going Up . . .

. . . And still they come. Members of the Woodside-Atherton Auxiliary to the Stanford Convalescent Home have unpacked boxes, barrels, crates and parcels of all sizes and description getting ready for Saturday's Tally-Ho extravaganza. From left to right Mrs. Raymond Ogburn, Mrs. Robert Norton who is assistant to the chairman of the auction sale, and Mrs. Robert Sheffield, chairman of the auxiliary, pause to admire the beaded lanterns which will be used for decorations at the Menlo Circus Club before being auctioned off late in the evening. —Recorder photo

Last Preview Day For Art Objects

A preview and pre-sale of Japanese objects of art to be used in decorating Saturday's Tally-Ho party will be on display for the last time today at the Allied Arts Tea Room in Menlo Park.

As a finale to the festivities, sponsored by the Woodside-Atherton Auxiliary to the Stanford Convalescent Home, decorations for the Tally-Ho party of the August Moon at the Menlo Circus Club will be auctioned off by Ben Alexander of television fame.

Among the items which can be viewed, and purchased ,today are decorative lanterns — tubular paper ones fashioned to look like Japanese dolls, fringed ones, elaborately beaded ones and a more durable spherical vinyl variety.

Outdoor garden lanterns, beautifully proportioned garden bridges and screens are a part of today's pre-party display, as well as exquisitely executed Japanese dolls.

Mrs. James Ransohoff, who helped arrange the four-day showing of imported items brought to Menlo Park especially for Saturday's extravagant benefit party, points out that the dolls are miniature works of art. Each piece of material is woven and designed particularly for dressing the specific doll. Their clothes are completely authentic — for example, the dancing geisha doll wears the exact replica of her model's costume, complete to layers of kimonos, eye make-up and elaborate hairdo.

Another item on display is a yaketori cart — a wheeled cart which will be used for dispensing appetizers to party-goers on Saturday during the cocktail hour. The cart contains its own refrigeration, cooking and storage facilities.

Even concession prizes will be Oriental imports. Among them are lacquer-type candy dishes, servers and trays, small dolls, Japanese clogs and chopsticks. These will be awarded as prizes to winners at the games of skill which will be available throughout the evening.

Localite Claims Bride

Halstead Harrison of Atherton claimed Lynne Widdis Davidson of Lafayette as his bride in a recent informal garden ceremony at the Reliez Valley home of Lynne's parents, the Albert H. Davidsons.

A former Stanford classmate, Mrs. Robert Charlson of Seattle, was matron of honor for Lynne, and her former roommate on the Palo Alto campus, Gail Stevens, was the other attendant.

Judge Walter I. Carpeneti of of San Francisco, a former law school friend of the bride's father ,officiated at the civil ceremony. Dudley Herschbach was best man for the bridegroom. Paul S. Hunt of Stanford was groomsman.

The new Mrs. Harrison is a June graduate of Stanford. Her husband, the son of Captain Drayton Harrison USN (ret.) and Mrs. Harrison, took his doctorate on the Palo Alto campus.

Mrs. William W. Anderson:

Women Join In Campaign For Tighter License Policy

Mrs. William W. Anderson of Menlo Park was among a group of 50 dedicated women who met recently at Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan, to plan a campaign to help officials develop stronger, more effective driver licensing programs in their states.

Attending the conference were state safety chairmen and alternate delegates of the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Optometric Association. The sessions, held Aug. 10-12, were conducted by the Michigan State University Highway Traffic Safety Center and Continuing Education Services through a grant from the Allstate Foundation.

A. E. Spottke, vice president of Allstate Insurance Companies, urged women to work for "motor vehicle departments properly staffed with professionally trained personnel, comprehensive driver examinations, better means for driver rehabilitation, and restriction of the driver when necessary through license suspension or revocation."

Gordon H. Sheehe, director of Michigan State University's Highway Traffic Safety Center, emphasized the need for spotting problem drivers sooner and for help to such drivers through driver improvement services. More research and proper application of new developments were musts according to Sheehe if we are to have driver licensing safeguards working for safety.

The women were further urged by Robert C. Sneller, chairman, motorist's vision and highway safety committee, American Optometric Association to demonstrate safe driving through their own skills, attitudes and physical and visual fitness; to get their husbands and children to follow their example, and to campaign to make all drivers in their state believers in the added safeguards of stronger driver licensing and improvement services.

'World of Enchantment'

Style Showing To Be A Standout

Committee members of St. Pius Church in Redwood City have been hard at work preparing their ninth annual Fashion Show, "World of Enchantment," to be held this year at Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heller's Atherton estate on Sept. 15.

Mrs. William G. Moore, general chairman of one of the largest afternoon social events of the fall season, entertained at brunch for the committee members in her Atherton home where final plans were discussed. She was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Gloria Tehaney.

Joseph Magnin will present their new fall cruise fashions by Italian and French designers from the rear patio of the Hellers' Spanish style home which will be transformed into the bow of one of Matson Navigation Company's luxury liners. Models will promenade on a gangplank and the brick walks which divide the formal gardens into various seating sections. Surrounding the seating sections are extensive flower beds of blooming California and Northwest natives.

A champagne hour will precede the show and will be served on the spacious lawns in the front area. The beautiful 27 acres are all landscaped and will be open to the public for the first time.

Travelers Return:

Couples Recount Recent Vacations

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD D. RYAN (pictured above) are shown prior to their departure for Honolulu aboard the S. S. Lurline on July 29. The Ryans returned to their Menlo Park home recently.

A high point of the trip was a visit with former St. Mary's football team member, Herman Wedemeyer. He and Mr. Ryan had been teammates at a time when St. Mary's had one of its most outstanding teams.

Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Stephan and their son, Don, aged 16, returned recently from a five-week vacation tour of twelve European countries. The Stephans, who flew both ways to give themselves more time to view the countries, found that organized bus tours were a good way to see the points of interest. "The bus was just wonderful," said Mrs. Stephan, "especially when we drove through the mountains in Switzerland." According to Mrs. Stephan ,the whole tour was exciting and interesting, and she could not pick out one country which had impressed her beyond all the others.

Outdoor Benefit Symphony:

CHC Concert Fulfills Five Year-Old Dream

The successful operation of an ambitious program, notably the Children's Health Council of the Midpeninsula, calls for large measures of two vital ingredients — inspiration and hard day-to-day work.

Evidence of both were very apparent last week when Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Wallace Sterling hosted an informal reception for patrons, sponsors, and CMC board members at their Stanford campus home.

The progress report on ticket sales for Summer Symphony I to be held on Aug. 28 in the Stanford University's Frost Amphitheater, is a heartening result to CHC planners who envisioned such an outdoor popular concert almost five years ago.

SURPASS GOAL

Mrs. Philip FitzGerald, sponsor ticket chairman, brought patrons and CHC board members up to date with the cheering report that patron and sponsor tickets at $10 each have been sold out, surpassing the $9000 goal originally set.

General admission tickets at $3 each have gone on sale and response to these has been equally warm. The ticket campaign will be in high gear up until concert time, as the benefit planners hope to fill the amphitheater to capacity with advance sales.

CHC members, hard at work on the thousand and one details inherent in an event of the magnitude of Summer Symphony I, indicate by the name chosen that inspiration and hard work will make this the first of a series of outdoor benefit concerts that will come to be yearly events on the calendars of music-loving Midpeninsulaites.

Tickets are available at the Children's Health Council, 700 Willow road, Palo Alto, at symphony box office agencies both here and in San Francisco and at numerous stores and offices in the area.

For the first time in two decades, the Peninsula is to enjoy an outdoor pops concert. The occasion is the benefit symphony sponsored by the Children's Health Council, scheduled for August 28.

Arthur Fiedler, well-known Boston pops conductor, will conduct Summer Symphony I in the Frost Amphitheater on the Stanford campus.

Noter pianist Jorge Bolet and Metropolitan Opera star Theodor Uppman are the guest solisits for the 4:30 concert.

All three of the outstanding artists are donating their services for the day. Because of this and the substantial contributions from Ampex Corp., Hewlett-Packard Co. and Varian Associates, it is assured that every dollar from ticket sales will go directly to CHC for the treatment of chilrden with mental, emotional and physical handicaps.

A heavy concentration of concert patrons is centered in Menlo Park, Woodside and Atherton.

Good News . . .

. . . Delights CHC board members and patrons as they hear that patron tickets are sold out. Mrs. Gladyn Putt of Atherton, James Brainerd, Mrs. Brainerd (back at work for CHC after a recent automobile accident) and Dr. James I. Ball agree that the next step is to promote general admission tickets up to and including concert day, August 28. Summer Symphony I promises Bay Area residents the first outdoor pops concert given in this area for more than two decades. —Recorder photo

Foster Home Need Noted By County

Foster homes are needed for children, 12 through 16 years og age, in San Mateo County.

Foster care involves raising an unrelated child, or children, for a temporary period of time and working together with a social worker for the benefit of the child.

I. W. Fellner, supervisor for the social service division, Department of Public Health and Welfare, points out that there are many satisfactions, as well as responsibilities, in providing foster care for children. Those interested in knowing more about the program are urged to call the foster home unit of the department, FI 1-1361, ext. 261.

After an application for the care of a foster child has been made, the applying couple is scheduled for a group meeting at which the foster care program is discussed. All members of the family are interviewed if, after the orientation meeting, husband and wife proceed with the application.

From Mother to Daughter . . .
. . . Mrs. Henry Ritter and her 19-month-old daughter, Caroline, join forces in the kitchen. Callie takes a bright-eyed interest in the colorful devices which Mrs. Ritter uses for patio entertaining. Colorful hoods fashioned of net and supported by an umbrella-like device protect food after it has been arranged on buffet tables. In the summertime, the Ritters find that their guests, particularly those from San Francisco, enjoy the informality of an outdoor party. —Recorder photo

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Ritter:

Entertain With Charm -- And A Tested Formula

Simplicity and elegance keynote the home of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Ritter Jr. of Atherton. The two qualities are repeated throughout their home (which Mrs. Ritter, an AIID member, has decorated), in the gardens divided into use areas by paving and planting, and in the entertaining they do.

The comment most often heard by the Ritters after one of their summer poolside parties is, "It has been a wonderfully relaxing afternoon." As any hostess can tell you, this delightful compliment takes careful planning.

And Mrs. Ritter, building her entertaining formula around simple elegance, affords her guests, many of them doctors and their wives, the maximum in fun and relaxation.

A three-year-old grocery list, the backbone of Mrs. Ritter's pre-party planning formula, can be multiplied or divided, depending on the number of guests expected.

MENU

Served buffet style, the menu includes platters of roast beef slices, cheese, white meat of turkey, another serving dish arranged with a center of bacon, ringed with sliced tomatoes and lettuce, and an egg salad mixture — all of which can be made into sandwiches (both white and rye bread are provided) or eaten as entree and salad.

With the sandwich and salad platters, the Ritters serve pickles, olives and the necessary condiments. A specially formulated iced tea and beer are the beverages. Depending on supply, Mrs. Ritter serves large stemmed strawberries with sour cream and brown sugar. As a substitute, French pastries are the dessert course.

UMBRELLAS

The magic in Mrs. Ritter's formula comes in the presentation of the al fresco lunch which usually is served at 3 p.m. Each serving dish is covered with a miniature umbrella fashioned of brightly covered netting studded with butterflies and bees, serving the purpose of keeping the real variety away from the food.

Silver serving dishes are considered by Mary Ritter to be both a lavish addition to outdoor entertaining and innately practical for use on the patio and pool deck .

Because mayonnaise and egg salad tarnish silver, Mrs. Ritter serves the mayonnaise in Steuben finger bowls and the salad mixture in golden colored covered dishes. Chips and crackers are offered to guests in wooden servers. All beverages are served in plastic glasses or cups.

FLEXIBLE

As Mrs. Ritter points out, because of the simplicity of the menu and because she has worked out proportions, amounts and the serving to an exactitude, this is a party that can be given for 10 guests, or 50, with or without help.

Because many of her guests are in the medical profession, timing can be a problem with a sit-down dinner which includes items which must be served immediately after they are cooked. A menu like the one outlined can be served at any time over a period of several hours and offers variety and taste appeal.

ICED TEA

Mrs. Ritter's variation on the iced tea theme involves using three tablespoons of instant tea, a can of frozen lemonade, and a tray of ice cubes. The pitcher is filled with water — the result, a self-sweetened cooler that obviates passing sugar and cream.

Two favorites among the Ritters' guests are the server offering makings for bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwiches and the egg salad mixture. For 50, four dozen eggs are hard-boiled and mixed with mayonnaise and mustard, proportions two-thirds mayonnaise and one-third mustard. Salt, pepper and paprika are added.

When the Ritters once suggested to a guest who had enjoyed several of their parties that they might change the menu, they were met with an indignant protest. Further proof that a well-tailored formula is the answer to foolproof entertaining.

Morgan F. Myers Claims Bride

Morgan Frank Myers of Menlo Park claimed Barbara Ann Stratton as his bride in a Saturday afternoon ceremony at Union Congregational Church in Green River, Wyo.

Barbara's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Richard C. Stratton of Green River. Morgan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan L. Myers of Menlo Park.

The newlyweds met several years ago while both were attending Stanford University. Morgan was graduated in 1958. Barbara received her degree a year later. The bridegroom was a member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity and is presently employed by Macy's in San Francisco.

Wedding guests received their first glimpse of Barbara's full-length wedding gown of white cloud mist taffeta as she came down the aisle on the arm of her father. Her dress was fashioned with long sleeves which tapered to points at the wrist, a portrait neckline outlined by reembroidered lace and seed pearls, and a chapel train.

Barbara's elbow-length silk illusion veil was held by a cap of lace and pearls. Over a satin-covered Bible, she carried a white orchid and stephanotis bouquet.

MAID OF HONOR

Janet Hopf of Salt Lake City was chosen by Barbara as her honor attendant. Morgan's two sisters, Marjorie and Jeanne Myers, both of Menlo Park, were bridesmaids.

Albert Davis of Long Beach, a fraternity brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Escorting guests to their places in the church were Richard L. Stratton II, a brother of the bride, and Dennis Anderson of Menlo Park.

Adjourning to the reception held in the gardens of the Stratton home, the new Mr. and Mrs. Myers greeted 200 guests.

Their honeymoon destinations were Yosemite Park and Las Vegas. On their return, they will live in San Francisco.

Morgan is a graduate of Menlo-Atherton High School. While at Stanford he was president of his fraternity

BUILD BETTER FOR LESS

We think we can. We think we do. We've done it in the highest priced areas of the state. We'll do it for you, on your ranch or lot, or help you find the lot, and sell you the whole package. How do we do it?—by selling quality, and by employing and cooperating with men who are a decade ahead in building techniques. The economy of this quality has caught the interest of appraisers, architects, builders, lenders, real estate men and the buying public. Let us show you what we can do.
